FOR RHEUMATIC FEVER VICTIMS

New Heart Surgery Gives Hope

CHARLESTON, S. C., Feb. 9—(AP)—A new heart operation, that offers hope to thousands of rheumatic fever victims, and other persons whose diseases have clogged valves inside their hearts, was performed successfully here 10 days ago by Dr. Horace G. Smithy, Assistant Professor of Surgery at the Medical College of South Carolina.

Dr. Smithy reported the operation Monday to a Tri-State medical meeting here, and exhibited his patient, up, walking and apparently nearly well.

He said operations on heart valves had not been attempted since the 1920s. In all those attempts one patient lived, he said, but was not benefited.

The patient is 21-year-old Betty Lee Woolridge, who came here from her home in Canton, Ohio, for the operation. Betty Lee owes her present recovery to her interest in reading newspapers.

She had been a virtual invalid since an attack of rheumatic fever when she was 18. She suffered two severe heart attacks. Both times she was treated by her Canton physician, Dr. Harry W. Beck.

After the last heart attack, a few months ago, Betty Lee's family was advised she could be expected to die within a year. The girl refused to give up hope.

Last September she noticed an Associated Press dispatch from New York telling of experimental work done on heart valves of animals at the Medical College here. There was no human surgery and no prediction that human treatment would come soon. The report was made to the American College of Surgeons annual meeting by Dr. Smithy, and the AP story was by Howard W. Blakeslee, Science Editor.

Betty Lee showed the newspaper clipping to her doctor, and begged him to arrange for an operation. Her travel and hospital expenses were underwritten by the Crippled Children's Society and the Rotary Club of Canton, Ohio.

The 85-pound girl came here by plane Jan. 18. Dr. Smithy said his first impulse was to send her back home.

"She was in very poor condition," he said. "She didn't look like she could stand any kind of operation."

The scar in the heart valve interfered with flow of blood from one main heart chamber to the other. She had to be propped on three pillows to breathe. Veins in her neck stood out like cords.

The operation took half an hour. Two difficulties to overcome were need for the heart to keep pumping all the time, and inability of the surgeon to see the valve.

It was predicted Monday that Betty Lee could look forward to a fairly normal life.

Icy Rain, Sleet, Snow Leave Flood, Crop Damage in Wake

Many Schools Close in State

Icy rains, sleet and snow that froze Atlanta Monday are moving eastward, leaving in their wake a trail of closed Georgia schools, impassable roads, flooded rivers and damaged crops.

Continued cold will grip Atlanta and the rest of the State today, but overhanging clouds were not expected to shed water after daylight except in East Central Georgia, near Augusta. Freezing rains were predicted for that area.

Bitter cold gripping Atlanta today will bring the mercury no higher than 34 degrees, after sinking to the mid-20s this morning, the U. S. Weather Bureau warned. A low of 25 looms for Atlanta late tonight, but the thermometer is expected to climb into the 40s Wednesday.

Continued rain was blamed for a cave-in of the pavement Monday night at Fourteenth Street and Howell Mill Rd., N. W. Streetcars were forced to transfer passengers at that point to busses.

Only one bright spot emerged from the rainy weather. "Bring it on," grinned Atlanta waterworks Mgr. Paul Weir. He pointed out that moisture absorbed by the earth now would mean more water for human consumption during dry periods next Summer. His glee was not shared by Clarke Donaldson, City Construction Chairman, who said inclement weather for the past three months had prevented asphalt patching to holes in pavement.

The Georgia Power Company used ice-cutters to break ice that began forming on trolley wires early Monday night. Trolleys were kept running all night on practically all lines to prevent further icing of wires.

DeKalb County roads began to ice Monday night, but Fulton County's road system was described as being in better condition. Icy but navigable was the condition of the Lawrenceville Highway, North Druid Hills Road and the Old Stone Mountain Road.

State Troopers were reported early Monday night to be diverting traffic from icing roads in the areas of Blue Ridge, Cornelia, Gainesville and Canton. U. S. Highway 41 between Atlanta and Chattanooga still was open.

All County schools will close unless the rains cease, the State School Department predicted. Georgia roads, a mass of mud, have caused the suspension of schools in DeKalb, Rockdale, Habersham, Pike, Dawson, Forsyth, Madison, Franklin, Oconee, Heard, Hart, Clarke and Clayton Counties. Four out of 22 county schools in Hall County are temporarily suspended. Whitfield County authorities left the problem of closing to individual school heads. Four schools will be closed today in Cobb County. Suspension of units was under consideration late Monday in several other counties.

Rivers surging out of their banks swamped fields and in some sections menaced cities. The Etowah at Cartersville reached its highest level in two years Monday, 15 feet above normal and still rising. The raging waters flooded the city's auxiliary water supply, cut the capacity of the filter plant, and halted the expansion program of the city's water system.

Several Rome families began moving to higher ground Monday as swirling rivers threatened their homes.

Red Cross and National Guard officials were standing by late Monday to move over 100 additional families if Rome rivers rise three feet above the 27-foot crest reached Monday night. Broad Street merchants would be forced to evacuate basements and put electric pumps into operation if the Oostanaula River rises to 30 feet. Sections of Noble Street in East Rome were under water Monday, but not impassable.

The Oconee River at Milledgeville Monday churned its muddy waters over its banks while rising nearly two feet above its 20-foot flood stage. Many Baldwin County roads were impassable.

Snow that laid over a three-inch sheet across the Clayton section left Route 76 closed to traffic. Travel was impossible over most county roads.

City Supt. L. C. Hulsey in Rockmart classified city streets in their worst condition in years after more than four inches of rain fell in 48 hours.

The swelling Chattahoochee River flooded farms in several areas but had not reached flood stage at West Point. At that point, however, the river crest was 14.8 feet above normal and still rising Monday. Nearly three inches of rain fall since Saturday afternoon has sent small creeks in the West Point area to flood stage.

The Oostanaula River, which joins the Etowah River at Rome to form the Coosa, was above its 22-foot danger level at Resaca.

Dalton got a dose of rain, sleet and snow Monday. Creeks poured over their banks and roads were described as being in bad shape.

Nearly four inches of rainfall in

S. C. Committee Spurns Demos 'Cool-Off' Period

While other Southerners fussed and fumed over President Truman's proposed civil rights law, a county Democratic Executive Committee in South Carolina Monday walked out of the party, spurning the 40-day "cooling-off" period provided in the Southern Governors' resolution.

At the same time, Democratic National Chairman Howard McGrath repudiated reports that he would center his speech on "civil rights" when he addresses the Jackson-Jefferson Day Dinner in Atlanta March 5.

Meanwhile Mississippi House of Representatives Monday urged Gov. Fielding L. Wright to call an early Southwide meeting of Democrats to force the National Party to respect and perpetuate the rights of the South.

It passed a concurrent resolution which said Wright should take the initiative because "a majority of the Southern Governors adopted dilatory tactics when the situation calls for speedy action.

Another development on the Civil Rights front found two Georgia Congressmen, Reps. Steve Pace, of Americus, and Sidney Camp, of Newnan, firing at the President's Civil Rights program in Washington.

Although the secession movement proposed for the South failed to materialize during the Southern Governors' Conference at Tallahassee over the week-end, the Jasper County (Ridgeland), S. C., Democratic Executive Committee voted to secede Monday. It called a county convention for Feb. 23 to secede formally from the National Party, asserting that it "holds the South in slavery."

"If there are any free people left in the South, they ought to go into mourning for those 40 days," said County Chairman H. Klugh Purdy. "The 40-day ultimatum by which the Governors hope to wring concessions from the administration on the Civil Rights program is the same as slaves trying to wring concessions from their masters."

State Democratic Chairman W. P. Baskin, of South Carolina, said Monday night, "South Carolina Democrats are united to fight for the fundamental traditions of the South."

Baskin told a reporter he conferred Monday with Sens. Maybank and Johnston, South Carolina Democrats, about "what to do." He said he will talk things over Tuesday with other members of Congress from his State.

He said that before he left South Carolina he called a meeting of the State Democratic Executive

Gaming Lord Shot on Coast; Gunman Flees

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 9—(UP)—Tony Cornera Stralla, fabulous California gambler, was shot in the abdomen by an unknown assailant Monday night as he answered the doorbell of his home.

He was hurried to a hospital, where his condition was reported as critical.

Police report that the gunman, handing Cornera a box as he answered the door, said "Here's the package." Then he fired through the box and fled.

Stralla at one time operated the million dollar gambling ship Lux off the California coast. The ornate floating casino was seized by the Coast Guard in September, 1946, on grounds it violated its license.

Only last month, Stralla's wife, Barbara, 28, was treated for an overdose of sleeping pills which she swallowed following a "slight argument."

Rooney, Birmingham Wife To Try Out a Separation

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9—(UP)—Actor Mickey Rooney and his beauty queen wife, the former Betty Jane Rose, Monday announced they had agreed on a trial separation.

The agreement was reached following a conference in the office of Rooney's business manager, Sam Steiffel. The separation came 10 days after Rooney's return from England where he appeared on the stage in a brief engagement.

This latest separation of the pint-sized actor and the former "Miss Birmingham" (Ala.) came six months after their reconciliation last summer.

Livestock Prices Plunge Sharply With Flour, Lard as Grains Rally

CHICAGO, Feb. 9—(AP)—Hog prices plunged to a 16-month low Monday. Farmers reacting to last week's commodity slump overloaded the market with offerings. Cattle and sheep also dropped sharply.

Grains, however, made a strong comeback, with corn and wheat closing eight cents higher. May corn finished at $2.21½ to $2.21 a bushel, and May wheat at $2.57¼ to $2.56¾.

The recovery was attributed to new buying, some short-covering, and purchasing ahead of mills.

Hog prices slipped $2 to $4 and more a hundred pounds to a top price of $22.25, the lowest since Jan. 6, 1947. Cattle followed with decreases of 50 cents to $3, and lambs dropped 75 cents to $1.

Some 4,000 hogs and from 3,000 to 5,000 cattle were left unsold at the day's end. With 15,000 hogs and 7,000 cattle expected for Tuesday's trade, indications pointed to another heavy market.

Hog prices fell heavily also at Kansas City, Seattle and East St. Louis, Ill., markets. Kansas City reported a $1.50 to $2.50 dip, Seattle a drop of $4.25, and East St. Louis a $2 to $4 decline. At Moultrie, Ga., South's largest livestock market, hog prices dropped $3 per hundredweight.

The upsurge in grain was reflected in mild recovery leanings at the New York Stock Exchange,

Ambulance Men Fight 'Doctor Must' Decree

By ROLFE EDMONDSON

An ordinace requiring that all ambulances operating in the City of Atlanta carry either a physician, a nurse or a first-aid expert may force 25 white and Negro private operators to store from one to three ambulances each, leaving to Grady Hospital the job of hauling the city's sick and injured, The Constitution learned Monday.

A group of local funeral home operators, who asked that their names be withheld, said they would meet Wednesday afternoon to organize opposition to the ordinance which was passed six weeks ago and is up for public hearing at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the police station.

The ordinance was passed under the sponsorship of officials of the Fulton County Medical Society and the Red Cross, but was referred to the Police Committee of the Council for a public hearing at the insistence of the private ambulance operators, who said they had not been heard before passage.

Under provisions of the ordinance, ambulances must carry either a nurse, a physician or a first-aid worker who has had 20 hours Red Cross training. Since the majority of the calls handled by private ambulances involve the transfer of the sick from hospitals to their homes, the funeral directors insist the cost of additional help or more skilled help would be prohibitive. Grady Hospital's three ambulances are restricted to emergency use.

RE-BARS THE DOOR

Recluse Sister Shuns Other's Rites

LYNBROOK, N. Y., Feb. 9—(AP)—The door to the junk-filled, one-room retreat of the reputedly wealthy Wolff sisters was nailed shut again Monday—from the inside—by the surviving sister, Edith, 47.

She refused to attend the funeral of Elsie, 43, who died Sunday after a heart attack in the house where the sisters had lived in seclusion for 10 years.

"I never go to funerals," was Edith's explanation.

Police Sunday battered down the door of the sisters' littered, crumbling kitchen in order to remove the body of the dead women, who weighed 400 pounds. Although the two-story frame residence has five rooms, the sisters lived only in the kitchen.

While six cousins pondered the case of their surviving recluse relative, Edith renailed the door to the kitchen after insisting tersely that she wanted to "live alone" in "the place where mother wanted us to live."

Withdrawal of the pair from the world began with the death of their mother some 20 years ago, and became complete with the death of their father, a well-to-do Lynbrook merchant, 10 years ago.

Their kitchen retreat has been without water, lights, toilet facilities or other services for years. The pair had obtained provisions, pails of water and kerosene for a cook stove by signalling to neighborhood boys through a window. Relatives estimated their wealth at $100,000.

ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE

And Here Is What Came Upon It

How To Get in Business?

ANTIGO, Wis., Feb. 9—(AP)—A wave of shoplifting in five Northern Wisconsin communities has resulted in the arrest of a family group whose members say they intended to open a store.

Five members of the family will be arraigned on charges of grand larceny, Langlade County District Atty. Henry J. Olk, Jr., said. A sixth individual will be charged as an accessory.

Olk identified the prisoners as Mrs. Ruby Swenke, 41; two daughters, aged 16 and 20, and the young women's husbands, Leonard Ditsworth, 23, and Kenneth Britt, 20. The sixth member is Edwin Buchar, 20.

The group was arrested Saturday in an Antigo store. Deputies searching their home near Merrill found what Olk said was "hundreds, maybe thousands of dollars' worth" of merchandise.

The District Attorney quoted members of the family as saying they planned to open a store, and had made a deposit on a building at Merrill.

All Fish Not Suckers

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—(AP)—An inquiring Indiana University scientist says he has concluded old age claims more fish than fishhooks do.

Dr. William E. Ricker, of the I. U. faculty, said he experimented with hatchery-reared fish who had no reason to be wary of hooks. When he sent fishermen after them in a pond, he said, only 21 percent bit in decisive "hook, line and sinker" manner.

On the strength of Dr. Ricker's claim that most fish would live to a ripe old age, regardless of fishermen, the State Conservation Department lengthened the season on all fish except trout. The season is now closed only from May 20 to June 16.

This Game 'Trumped' Up

ORCHARD PARK, N. Y.—(AP)—Mrs. Wilfred H. Woods says she, her husband and two companions drew perfect bridge hands, but were too surprised to play them.

Woods, the dealer, had 13 spades; Mrs. Woods, 13 hearts; Mrs. Edward Lippincott, 13 diamonds, and Harlan Abbott, 13 clubs. The cards had been used in previous hands, shuffled and cut before dealing.

"We were so dumbfounded we just stared at each other," Mrs. Woods said. "Finally I threw down my cards and said: 'Something must be wrong.'"

Super-sonic Sermon

DECORAH, Iowa—(AP)—How a radio broadcast momentarily was injected into the Sunday sermon of the Rev. Daniel O'Sullivan remained a mystery.

When the strange interruption echoed through St. Benedict's Catholic Church a second time during the sermon, Father O'Sullivan removed from his vestment a small walkie-talkie he was using to amplify his voice. There was no trouble after that. The amplifier apparently had picked up the frequency of some radio station.

His Loss Is Her Win

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—It was just a case of too many horses—slow horses—Mrs. Rosemary Levine testified in obtaining a divorce from Film Producer Nat Levine, 47.

She declared that on their honeymoon last September her husband spent all his spare time at Golden Gate Race Track in San Francisco.

"He would lose up to $10,000 a day betting the horses," she said.

The court approved a property settlement.

Lawyer Strikes Fiery Acquittal

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP)—A lawyer smashed his right fist into his left palm Monday in a heated argument to the jury trying his client for assault and larceny.

Flame and smoke spurted from his hand. As surprised as the jury, he shook loose a burning packet of book matches he had been holding. His blow had started them burning.

The lawyer, Roosevelt Page, was slightly burned on one finger. The jury freed his client 10 minutes later.

SO THERE!

I've Said It, And I'm Glad

Why can't motorists realize that pedestrians have a right on the street, also? Some motorists seem to feel that the only place they can stop when blocked by a red light is on the pedestrian pattern for crossing the street.

In an instance like this a pedestrian has two choices, either wait for the next red light or walk out of the pattern and subject himself to being injured.

Reds Charge U. S., Britain, France With Clearing Way to World War II

MOSCOW, Feb. 9—(AP)—Russia charged Monday night that American dollars and British and French diplomacy paved the way for World War II.

An official Soviet statement said the Western Allies' dealings with conquered Germany after World War I gave Adolph Hitler the armed strength and diplomatic security he needed to launch World War II.

These facts, Russia said, are contained in "important documents which were captured by Soviet troops during the smash-up of Hitlerite Germany."

"Publication of these documents will help present the true picture of how Hitler's aggression and the second World War were in reality prepared and developed," the statement said.

The statement was the Soviet reply to the U. S. State Department's publication Jan. 21 of 300 documents captured from the Nazis dealing with Russian-German relations prior to World War II.

The documents said Germany and Russia agreed to partition Poland between them. They said further that Russia backed Germany heavily against the West and agreed with Hitler that the United States, as well as Great Britain, should be shut out of Europe, Asia and Africa.

They were published only by the United States and with the sanction of Secretary of State Marshall.

The Russian statement, issued to newsmen by the Soviet Information Bureau, charged:

Extra Million Allocated To Lift School Bus, Mail Roads Out of Mud

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Georgia's school bus and mail route roads may be given a cheap covering of pavement to make them passable and thus get the State out of the mud.

This was indicated Monday by Chairman John Beasley after the State Highway Board had allocated an additional $1,000,000 for rushing repairs to heavily damaged roads, a casualty of this Winter's excessive ice, snow and rain. Previously, the State road maintenance program had been doubled to an all-time high of $5,000,000.

Beasley also revealed an additional $500,000 would be spent to purchase maintenance equipment for the school and mail roads.

The Board also approved one of the biggest contract lettings in State history for Feb. 27. An estimated $4,500,000 worth of road-building contracts spread over a large number of contracts will be let on that date.

Meanwhile in Washington, more help for Georgia roads seemed forthcoming as President Truman asked Congress to extend the Federal highway aid program to States until mid-1951 at the rate of $500,000,000 per year.

Beasley said that by using the cheapest paving available to pave school and mail roads, rather than to top-soil them again, the State would save money in the long run.

Under the proposed plan, existing roadbeds would be used. No additional rights-of-way would be obtained. There would be no grading. The paving would be a strictly surface treatment.

As these moves were made, however, Highway Maintenance Engineer Charlie Leftwich said dirt roads—on and off the State system—are impassable, and will have to remain so until there is sufficient dry weather to permit road work.

"The heavy freeze followed by continuous rains has made these dirt roads impassable," said Leftwich. "Traffic attempting to move over them is churning into the dirt and slashing the roads even worse. We have some workers out every day making such repairs as they can, but there is very little we can do for these dirt roads until we get the help of the sun."

Beasley told the Board that the Department is building a record number of farm-to-market roads.

"We have 251 miles of post roads either under contract or programmed for construction during the years 1947 and 1948," Beasley said. "These roads are not on the State maintenance system."

Declaring that most of the impassable dirt roads for which his Department is being blamed are "not within three miles of a State highway," Beasley pointed out that there are 78,300 miles of roads which are not on the State system and which are the responsibility of the counties.

"The State Highway Department has paved only 9,000 miles since 1917," Beasley recalled. There are 6,000 miles on the system yet unpaved. If we are to work at the same speed that the Department has worked since its creation, it would take us 25 years to pave this 6,000 miles on the State system. It won't take us nearly that long because we are speeding up our program. However, we cannot be expected to smooth out all of Georgia's highways in a day. We are doing a good businesslike job of improving Georgia roads."

Mr. Truman noted in his plea for continued Federal road aid that most State Legislatures meet early in 1949.

"The States need a firm basis of Federal action in advance in order to determine the engineering and budgetary aspects of the State highway programs," he said.

He asked for action at this session, observing that it would "permit continuity in planning and construction." He cited the national security need for highways.

"The same legislation," the message said, "should continue the authorization for direct Federal construction of roads in public land areas, such as the national forests, national parks and Indian reservations in an amount of $71,000,000."

Taxis Aid Churchgoing

BOWDON, Ga.—(UP)—Bowdon residents have one less excuse now for failing to attend church on Sunday. A local taxi firm announced it will carry anyone within the city limits to church or Sunday school without charge.

Okay Seen For Airport Programs

Improvement of the Atlanta Municipal and Naval Airports and construction of four new landing fields in the Atlanta area are projected in a three-year $20,000,000 program. The Civil Aeronautics Administration is expected to announce the program in the next few days.

Advices from Washington said the new program contemplated construction of 46 new ports and improvement of 46 existing installations.

Jack Gray, Municipal Airport Manager, said the Federal agencies already had allocated $607,000 for improvements at the field for this year and the city will provide $714,000 as the sponsor's contribution.

He added that the city would continue to seek Federal matching funds for the $3,000,000 airport bonds which Atlantans authorized in the $6,000,000 expansion program.

Amounts of the new allocations for the various ports were not announced, but it was said the overall program contemplated $3,944,000 in Federal and $4,149,000 in sponsor's funds for new construction; and $5,452,000 in Federal funds and $5,735,000 in sponsor's funds for the improvements.

Fulton County authorized $1,000,000 in bonds for an airport at Sandy Springs and the list of projects includes that facility.. A Class 1 port also was projected for Decatur.

Major airports slated for construction or improvement during the three-year period include Albany, Americus, Athens, Augusta, Bainbridge, Brunswick, Camilla, Canton, Columbus, Dalton, Elberton, Gainesville, LaGrange, Macon, Milledgeville, Moultrie, Rome, Savannah, Statesboro, Thomasville, Tifton, Valdosta, Washington, Waycross and Waynesboro.

Publishing Firm Loses $40,000 to Safecrackers

GIRARD, aKn., Feb. 9—(AP)—The E. Haldeman-Julius Publishing Company, which publishes pocket-size books, reported Monday its safe had been cracked by burglars and about $40,000 taken from it.

Sheriff Ernie Stevens said he believed someone had hidden in the building Sunday afternoon and then let others in Sunday night.

E. Haldeman-Julius, the publisher, said he had been too busy to go to the bank Saturday and had "put the money in my safe."

Sheriff Stevens reported the knob on the safe had been broken and the lock punched out.

ITALIAN PRISONERS RIOT

PALERMO, Italy —(UP)— Two hundred hardened criminals revolted in Sicily's Caltanisetta Prison, overpowering guards and seizing control of the prison where they were besieged by a cordon of troops and federal police, authorities announced.

The riot began when guards attempted to remove a prisoner identified only as Misanderolino, believed to be a member of the notorious bandit gang led bgy Salvatore Giuliano, for deportation to the Islands of Elba where Napoleon was once imprisoned.

Misanderolino yelled for help, and other prisoners kicked in the flimsy wooden doors of the cells and swarmed into the corridors.

Police announced that they would storm the prison during the night, and wives, sisters and sweethearts immediately began a protest demonstration outside police lines.

JOE E. BROWN CASE

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—A 34-year-old chauffeur said by the FBI to be wanted in several states on charges of impersonating the late son of Joe E. Brown, film and stage comedian, was held here under $10,000 bond.

The suspect, Frederick M. Roe, was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Reginald H. Carter on a warrant issued in Minneapolis, Minn., charging auto theft.

BANDITS KILL EXECUTIVE

EL PASO, Tex.—(UP)—A bandit shot and killed Maurie Heaton, 42, prominent Los Angeles advertising executive, and wounded his companion, R. D. MacNeil, 40, advertising manager of the El Paso Newspaper Printing Corp.

Heaton was visiting here as MacNeil's guest. MacNeil had taken him to the Scenic highway north of the city for its vista of El Paso. The bandit approached the parked car, pistol in hand. There was resistance and shots. The bandit then fled on foot and sheriff's deputies quickly formed a posse which began searching the area.

GOVERNOR SUSPECTS ATLANTAN

Patrol Cracks Down On Highway Gamblers

By JACK TARVER

At the direction of Acting Gov. Thompson the State Patrol is cracking down on crooked gambling games which have been fleecing tourists along Georgia's major highways.

Troopers have raided at least two of the layouts which, usually operated in connection with a "free zoo" to attract suckers, have flourished in Georgia for the past several years. A third, apparently tipped-off, was in the process of moving when the patrolmen arrived. This, according to Thompson, substantiates his theory that all such places are operated by an Atlantan with a lengthy police record in the rackets field.

Saturday, I saw one of the gambling devices confiscated and talked with the carefully-selected patrolman who gathered the evidence which led to the arrests in Echols and McIntosh Counties

"Nobody knew anything about our raiding it but the Governor, Major Davis (Director of the Department of Public Safety), Capt. White, and myself," he said of last week's raid on the Coastal highway out from Darien.

"Capt. White and I hailed an out-of-the-state car up the road from the place and told the fellow driving what we wanted. He was eager to cooperate. So we got in and went riding up like three Yankees just taking it easy on our way to Florida.

"It didn't take long to look over the animals. They only had a handful of snakes and varmints. And then the fellow kind of led us over to a board where a young man and woman were playing a sort of marble game. They were on their honeymoon, we found out later, and were already hooked for $80, which was most of what they had."

Here the trooper went around and opened the back of his patrol car, revealing a hardwood contraption about the size of a large bread board. It had a rim around it and, pitted on its surface, must have been 40 or 50 holes, all numbered. There were half a dozen red marbles scattered in the holes about the board. Laying beside it was another board, with numbers from one to 29, and the directions painted thereon. The numbers were alternated, black and red, except for 29, which was green.

"You bet however much you wanted and rolled the balls," explained the patrolman. "If they added up to a red number, you won. If it was a black number the house won. Only, when you won, you couldn't pick up. You had to double your bet and roll again until you rolled the green number, 29.

"The only thing about it is, I've been rolling those balls ever since we took this thing, and they never come up 29. I don't understand how it is, but it's a mathematical impossibility for you ever to win."

"Well, sir," continued the trooper, "when we went in, the girl, she was already about to cry and the man was desperate, the way you get when you know you're getting swindled and can't figure out now. They were taking him mighty fast.

"I didn't have to watch but a minute before I saw what was going on and then we rounded them all up and took them into Darien. They were a surprised bunch. Yeah, we made 'em give the boy and girl their money back and a happier pair you never saw."

By the time the case had been booked and an effort made to secure a warrant for the arrest of the Telfair operators, they were packed up and ready to pull out when the troopers arrived.

But Gov. Thompson promises that the raids will continue as rapidly as the zoos are re-established.

"I know that the main responsibility of the Highway Patrol is to enforce traffic regulations on the highway," Thompson said in explanation. "But I feel that our own people as well as tourists are entitled to protection against robbers on the highway, whatever their method of operation."

Thompson praised not only the patrol, but also Judge George Lilly and Sol. J. B. Edwards, of the Southern Circuit Superior Court and Sol. Ralph Dawson and Sheriff Tom Poppell, of McIntosh, for their assistance.

"It wouldn't do any good for us to raid these places unless we have the full co-operation of local officials in prosecuting them," he added.

Georgians' Paychecks Reach Peak In 1947; Exceed $1,000,000,000

Georgia paychecks reached a new peak in 1947—exceeding for the first time in history $1,000,000,000, State Labor Commissioner Ben T. Huiet told the State Agricultural and Industrial Development Board Monday.

Huiet was one of a number of State Department heads who were scheduled to discuss their problems and needs with the Planning Board Monday and Tuesday.

The 514,000 workers in 11,400 firms covered by the State Unemployment Compensation Act received salaries totaling more than $1,000,000,000, Huiet said. "Covered" firms were those employing eight or more persons and contributing to the unemployment compensation fund. Huiet estimated that total salaries of smaller "uncovered firms would amount to only $2,000,000.

Huiet said the employers had paid out $33,000,000 in jobless benefits since the law became effective. He said they have built up a "cushion against unemployment" of $94,538,082, which is on deposit with the Federal Government. The original tax of 2.7 per cent has been reduced to a minimum of 0.50 per cent. The average employer pays 0.97 per cent.

Appeals to the Planning Board to join them in their pleas to the Legislature for more funds were made by Vice-Chancellor Harry Brown of the University System, Agricultural Commissioner Tom Linder, Labor Commissioner Huiet and State School Supt. M. D. Collins. Other speakers were Chairman Walter McDonald of the Public Service Commission and Director Arthur Cheatham of the Veterans Service Department.

The Board will hear today from State Forester A. R. Shirley, Director Charles Elliott of the Game and Fish Commission, State Geologist Garland Peyton, Mrs. J. E. Hays, historian, State Welfare Director Bill Ireland, Director Lon Sullivan of the Citizens Council, and Public Safety Director J. Q. Davis.

Grants of $41,435 Will Go To Five Emory Researchers

Five Emory University faculty members have been selected to receive grants totalling $41,435 for advanced study in medicine, physics, pharmacology and biology, officials of the University announced Monday.

Largest grant will go to Dr. Elliott Scarborough, who will receive $24,000 from the National Institute of Health to be used for "co-ordination and improvement of cancer teaching in the School of Medicine."

Dr. Scarborough, Director of Emory's Winship Memorial Clinic and a member of the Department of Surgery of the School of Medicine, said the money would provide additional staff for the clinic and thus free staff and faculty members for more work on cancer instruction for medical students.

The next largest grant, totaling $10,000 from Cinchona Products Institute, will be divided between Dr. William F. Friedewald, Chairman of the Department of Bacteriology and Immunization, and Drs. Arthur P. Richardson and Harry A. Walker, of the Department of Pharmacology.

Dr. Friedewald was allotted $5,000 to investigate the possible uses of cinchona alkaloids, such as quinine, in the fight against influenza viruses. Drs. Richardson, Chairman of the Pharamacology Department, and Walker, Associate Professor, will use $5,000 to study the possibility of developing new antimalaria agents from a combination of cinchona alkaloids and other drugs.

Dr. William B. Redmond, Associate Professor of Biology in the Emory College of Arts and Sciences, will receive approximately $3,200 from the United States Public Health Service to study the effect of electric charges on cells in malarial infection.

A grant of $4,235 will go to Dr. Robert T. Lagemann, Associate Professor of Physics, from the Research Corporation of New York for a continuing study of supersonic velocities in liquids.

City Negotiates On Auditorium

Robert & Company, Engineers, will be asked to negotiate a contract with one of the four original bidders for enlarging the Municipal Auditorium, if City Council Monday approves a resolution which members of Council's Buildings and Athletics Committee is slated to present.

Under the plan, contractors will be asked to offer the rock bottom bids for extension of the existing front along Courtland Street, on land now occupied by the old USO building, and for building as much exhibit space paralleling the existing auditorium as possible for $586,000, the amount available in bonds.

If the program is pursued, the new front will conform to the present building and exhibit space will be built behind it.

The new plan means that no improvements will be made to the existing structure. A plan through which exhibitors would provide $500,000 for a 62,000-square-foot addition had fallen through because donors insisted on priority right to reserve the new structure.

TO A HERO—Clark D. Bishop, left, trackless trolley operator, who gambled his life to save a pedestrian from an onrushing train, accepts a $500 bond from C. B. McManus, extreme right, President of Georgia Power Company. Bishop's wife, also awarded a gift by the Company, and their daughter, Glenda Joyce Bishop, shared honors with the courageous operator Monday night at the dinner sponsored by top Company officials. A bracelet the Company presented fascinated the well-behaved child.

UNSELFISH, COURAGEOUS DEED

T-Trolley Operator Cited For Saving Youth's Life

"I could face an onrushing diesel better than I can address this crowd," a trackless trolley operator, who snatched a student from impending death, told top officials of the Georgia Power Company Monday night when they honored him at the Henry Grady Hotel.

But Clark D. Bishop, the trolley operator who risked his life to grab Leonard Harris from the onrushing wheels of a train Jan. 10, was wrong. He handled his response to glowing words of praise with the poise of a veteran.

Bishop made his forthright address after receiving a $500 bond from President C. B. McManus in token of the Georgia Power Company's appreciation of his valiant deed. He had also seen his radiant wife and young daughter receive valuable gifts from the Company.

The unassuming operator who had become Atlanta's hero heard President McManus' heart-felt gratitude for a man who would gamble his life to save the life of another. Mayor Hartsfield, Associate Editor Jack Tarver, of The Constitution; WCON News Editor Lockwood Doty, and Editor Wright Bryan, of The Atlanta Journal, had praised his unselfish courage in the act that brought credit to his company and all Atlanta.

Then Bishop showed the same reasoning ability and alertness that had enabled him to leap from his trolley on the East Point-Hapeville route and snare a youth from certain death seconds before a train's grinding wheels passed over the spot.

"The spirit of good will you have shown me," Bishop told them, "should encourage heroism and discourage vandalism.

"This is a red-letter day in my life. I was a farmer's son. If I have done anything worthy of honor I owe it to the clean, Christian home in which I was raised.

"Any other operator would have done the same as I.

"But I thank God that I had the opportunity."

The applause was ringing—and sincere.

Bass High Coach Denies Teaching Evolution Theory

Herbert E. "Swede" Philips, well-known teacher and Athletic Coach at Bass High School, Monday denied charges by an Atlanta Baptist minister that he taught the story of the creation of man contrary to the story recounted in the Bible.

Phillips, who was attacked from the pulpit of the Rev. J. LeRoy Steele, Pastor of the Inman Park Baptist Church, said he had made no "attempt to teach biology or religion. I am a teacher of English," he added.

The Rev. Mr. Steele named Phillips as a teacher who was "subjecting our children to ridicule of the Bible account of the creation of man." The minister said he had the testimony of eight or 10 high school students to support his statement.

Phillips, who is a graduate of a Baptist school, Stetson University, said he compared the evolution of the English language to "what scientists believe to be the development of mankind."

The teacher said he made the statement in answer to a question by a pupil who wanted to know why English was not spoken many years ago as it is today. The discussion took place just before the class was dismissed and was not included in the day's instruction, Phillips said.

THE TROUBLED WORLD

Non-'State' Control for Aid Plan Agreed by Senate Body--George

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee was reported in "general agreement" Monday that the European recovery program should be run by an agency outside the State Department.

This progress report came from Sen. George, Democrat, Georgia, a Committee member, after the Senate group began drafting the "Marshall Plan" into bill form.

The Senators face many problems in planning long-term American assistance to help Europe back to economic health.

These issues include Republican demands for a good-sized cut in the $6,800,000,000 asked by Secretary of State Marshall for the first 15 months of the aid-Europe program.

AID FOR MUKDEN

PEIPING—(AP)—The Chinese Government flew reinforcements to Mukden to meet the military crisis in that largest Manchurian city.

Pro-Government dispatches said the rail town of Suchiatun, only seven miles from Mukden, was surrounded by Communist troops. The Reds have captured Liaoyang, 35 miles South of Mukden on the Mukden-Dairen rail line. They are besieging the steel town of Anshan, 15 miles farther South.

GANDHI'S ASHES

NEW DELHI—(AP)—Defense Ministry Headquarters disclosed detailed plans for the strewing of Mohandi Gandhi's ashes into the Ganges and Jumna Rivers, sacred to the Hindu faith.

The ceremony will take place Thursday at Allahabad, 370 miles southeast of New Delhi. Gandhi was assassinated in New Delhi Jan. 30 and his body cremated.

A special train carrying the remains of the slain Hindu patriot will arrive at Allahabad station at 9 a. m. Thursday.

SYNAGOGUE DAMAGED

JERUSALEM—(AP)—British soldiers damaged a synagogue in the Jaffa-Tel Aviv border area when they blew up an adjoining house suspected of being a snipers' nest.

At first a military spokesman denied reports that the synagogue had been damaged, but subsequently the Army announced:

"The demolition caused some damage to the synagogue, the adjoining wall of which was found to have been reinforced. On searching the synagogue, four Sten guns, 11 magazines and four grenades were discovered underneath the rostrum."

WESTERN BLOC

FRANKFURT—(INS)—Dr. Kurt Schumacher, Chairman of the Social Democrat Party in Western Germany, called for "the economic incorpartion of all Germany into a west European confederation."

It was the first official German comment on the plan for a union of west European states proposed by the British Foreign Secretary Bevin.

Schumacher declared in an exclusive interview given to the Frankfurt newspaper "Offenbach Post" that the "Confederation" is needed to "balance the Soviet bloc."

ROMANIAN REDS DRIVE

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia—(UP)—Romanian Communists have opened a campaign to take a complete grip on political power by discarding the present coalition bloc in favor of a "democratic people's front," dispatches from Bucharest said.

The Communist move came six weeks after the ouster of King Michael and the proclamation of a Romanian "People's Republic."

Consolidation of complete power in Romania and Bulgaria will leave only Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary with any vestige of formal political opposition in eastern Europe.

MR. GUY McGAHEN

ABLE TO BE ON THE GO NOW, RETIRED CAPTAIN GIVES RETONGA CREDIT

"After Seeing What It Did for Me, a Friend Went Right Down and Got a Bottle and Started Taking It," Declares Los Angeles Home Owner. Discusses His Case.

Happy and grateful men and women all over California are praising Retonga for the relief this famous herbal stomachic and Vitamin B-1 medicine brought them, often after years of suffering. Among the latest to come forward with a strong public endorsement of this noted medicine is Captain Guy McGahen (retired), 1101 West 99th St., Los Angeles. Captain McGahen served thirty years in the U. S. Infantry, owns his home, is a Mason and Shriner. Discussing his happy experience with Retonga, Captain McGahen happily declares:

"After seeing what Retonga did for me a friend went right down and got a bottle and started taking it. Before starting on Retonga I hadn't felt like myself for about three years and I put off doing anything about it, as people will do. My digestion got so bad finally that gas bloated my stomach until I would sometimes have to go to bed for eight to ten hours before I could get relief. Nothing I ate tasted right, I didn't have much appetite, and when I did eat a good meal I felt dopey and drowsy and went to sleep in my chair. I never felt like doing anything that required any effort. My bowels were so sluggish that I had to take laxatives every night for a year. I felt shaky and jittery inside, and I seemed to have only a fraction of my normal strength.

"Retonga relieved all this distress so remarkably and I feel so much better that I have been painting and varnishing floors and putting new screens in my home, something I didn't have the energy to do before. Food tastes good now, I sleep restfully, and the dopey, jittery feeling and constipation are entirely relieved. I am on the go from morning till night, I feel good, and Retonga deserves the credit."

Retonga is a purely herbal stomachic medicine combined with liberal quantities of Vitamin B-1 and is intended to relieve distress due to insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, loss of appetite, Vitamin B-1 deficiency and constipation. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at May's Cut-Rate Drug Store, 112 Whitehall St.—(adv.)

Water Power Seen Key to State Growth

By WELLINGTON WRIGHT

Industry follows cheap electricity and there is enough potential hydro-electric power in the major watersheds of Georgia to make this State one of the greatest industrial regions of the nation, Col. Paschal N. Strong, District Engineer at Savannah for the Corps of Engineers, told members of the Georgia Engineering Society Monday.

Col. Strong, who is in charge of the construction of the Clark's Hill Dam, on the Savannah River above Augusta, spoke Monday night before the Atlanta Chapter of the American Society of Military Engineers at the Ellen Rice Tearoom.

"The future of Georgia is inseparably tied up with the development of its water resources," said Col. Strong. "Industry demands three things—easy access to raw materials; a plentiful supply of suitable labor, and cheap power.

"Georgia has the materials and the labor but not the power. That is, it does not have coal or oil in any appreciable quantity. It is this lack of power which in the past has handicapped the State's industrial development. However, the water resources of Georgia can supply cheap electric power and it takes no stretch of the imagination to forecast what industry will do when that power becomes available."

Col. Strong estimated that the development of these water resources of Georgia will put the State in the center of a region with more than 2,500,000 kilowtts of electric power, "the greatest installed production of hydroelectric power anywhere in the world."

In order to protect American industry from the dangers of atomic warfare, Col. Strong predicted the neessary decentralization.

"The needs of our national defense require the development of these water resources in Georgia," he said. "And that development will, indeed, make Georgia an Empire State."

Atlanta Chains Whack Flour and Bacon Prices

There was good news for housewives Monday in price reductions on flour, bacon, lard and several other basic food items as quoted by three out of four large Atlanta grocery chains.

The drop in retail prices will be generally effective today as a result of last week's sharp break on the nation's major commodity markets, and other price reductions may be in effect here by the end of the week, depending on the markets' continued decline or stabilization.

Three Atlanta chains quoted reductions in flour prices from 10 cents to 26 cents per 25-pound bag, effective today. Bacon was off anywhere from 4 to 25 cents a pound from last week, and lard down from four to six cents a pound.

One chain store executive, announcing a four-cent reduction in lard prices and drops of 18 cents and 26 cents on 25-pound bags of two popular grades of flour, said housewives should watch next Thursday morning's grocery advertisements for other price reductions.

"We are changing our prices as fast as we can," he said, "but it usually takes several days for prices here to reflect the changes on the commodity markets."

An official of another chain said his company has made "several substantial price reductions this week." He quoted bacon at 63 cents a pound, a reduction of 25 cents from a recent high of 88 cents. Prices of eggs, butter and hams have been slightly reduced, he said, with steak down to 83 cents a pound from a high of 95 cents. Flour was off 10 to 15 cents, but bread prices were unchanged.

Another large firm lowered flour prices by 16 to 20 cents on a 25-pound bag, trimmed lard by six cents a pound, bacon from four to 10 cents a pound, smoked ham by six cents a pound, and pork chops by six cents a pound.

An official of a fourth chain said, however, that his company had not put into effect any price reductions "that would amount to a hill of beans," and that speculation of a general price slump is "premature." His firm had reduced bacon by one cent a pound and gone up on pork loin one and a half cents a pound, and had lowered flour prices a few cents. Meat packers, he said, were quoting higher prices Monday.

On the nation's major commodity markets, however, livestock dropped sharply Monday whereas grains rallied slightly. On these two indices will largely depend the prices housewives will have to pay for food during the coming week.

One chain store official pointed out last week that a continued drop in grain prices should help Georgia livestock growers and dairymen in reduced feed costs which might eventually result in lower milk prices to consumers.

Milk prices already are a subject of controversy. Mrs. E. H. Payne, heading an organized protest against Atlanta price increases from 22 to 24 cents a quart, said she and other Atlanta mothers will present their case to the State Milk Board Feb. 16. Countering Mrs. Payne's position, L. T. Wells, of Foremost Dairies, said milk production costs are up 100 percent from 1942, twice the increase in milk prices.

Mississippi Court Quashes Negro Case

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 9—(AP)—The Mississippi Supreme Court Monday squashed an indictment of a Negro sentenced to die for assaulting a white woman. It held his constitutional rights were violated when Negroes were excluded from the grand and petit juries.

In a 4 to 2 decision the Court remanded to Forrest Circuit Court the case of Willie McGee, Negro twice convicted for assaulting a prominent Laurel white woman.

The Court cited the recent United States Supreme Court decision in the case of Eddie (Buster) Patton, Negro, convicted of murdering a white man. In that case the Federal jurists held Patton was entitled to a new trial because Negroes were excluded from jury service.

Realtor Joins The Thousands Switching To Milder Calvert

Timothy Sexton

Timothy Sexton, real estate agent, of 707 People's State Bank, Indianapolis, Ind., is a moderate man. "That's why I switched to Calvert," he says. "It makes a milder, better tasting highball."

Mr. Sexton's statement is not unusual. For the same reasons, thousands all over America are switching to Calvert because they've found that it is uniformly smoother, mellower and lighter.

Calvert Reserve, choice blended whiskey, 86.8 proof. The straight whiskies in this product are five years or more old, 35% straight whiskey, 65% grain neutral spirits. It is a product of Calvert Distillers Corp., New York, N. Y.

Pistols, machine guns and other lethal weapons are all very well for those who want them, but give the Beck family, of Wilkinson County, an old-fashioned pitchfork.

Typhoons Cause Cocoanut Shortage

Typhoons in the Philippines around the first of the year may have swept cocoanut layer cakes and cocoanut candy right off the American menu, according to a report from the Manila Evening News to The Atlanta Constitution.

Most of the cocoanut plants in the Philippines are located in the regions most seriously damaged, resulting an unprecedented price of $7.75 per 100 nuts. Most cocoanut producers are pessimistic about continued production at present prices for nuts.

67 Georgia War Dead Listed From Far East

The United States Army Transport Cardinal O'Connell will arrive at San Francisco with the bodies of 2,875 men and seven women who fell in the Pacific during World War II. Of the group, second to be returned to the United States from the Pacific Ocean area, 67 are listed as having next-of-kin residents in Georgia. No women were included in the Georgia group.

A total of about 3,000 bodies were returned from the Pacific Oct. 10, 1947, aboard the USAT Honda Knot, first ship to arrive with bodies being returned under a program authorized by Congress in 1946.

The bodies of the servicemen aboard the O'Connell are from many cemeteries throughout the Pacific. A large number of the bodies had been concentrated at the mausoleum in the Hawaiian Islands after smaller mid-Pacific island cemeteries had been evacuated. The bulk of the others are being returned from cemeteries at Brisbane and Sydney, Australia, and Guadalcanal.

It was expected that from 10 days to three weeks would elapse between the time of first notification of next-of-kin and arrival of the remains at the home town or National Cemetery for final interment. Regional Quartermaster Distribution centers will notify the families before bodies are brought under soldier escort for burial.

Names of those from Georgia being returned aboard the O'Connell follow. The list shows rank, name and branch of service of the deceased, name and address of next of kin:

dustry for Hitler Germany and in particular her war industry."

2. "It was the billions of American dollars invested by overseas monopolies in the war economy of Hitler Germany that re-established Germany's war potential and placed into the hands of the Hitler regime the weapons it needed for aggression."

3. Britain and France engineered a non-aggression pact between Germany and Poland in 1934 which was important "in the preparation of German aggression."

The Russians, who entitled their statement "Falsifications of history," said the Russian press would carry it Tuesday.

The Soviet declaration dealt extensively with events following World War I, paying special attention to the Dawes Reparations Plan for Germany.

It devoted several hundred words to American banking and American financial aid to Germany between the two wars and said that such dollar support enabled Germany, within a short period of time, to re-establish a powerful war industry capable of producing "enormous amounts of first-rate armaments, thousands upon thousads of tanks, planes and guns, as well as naval ships of the latest design, and armaments of other kinds."

Speaking of the U. S. State Department's revelation of Nazi documents, the Russian statement said.

"In order to justify in some way before world public opinion the unilaterial publication of this collection of unverified and arbitrarily picked-out records by a Hitlerite official, the British and American press fabricated and circulated an explanation according to which the Russians rejected a proposal of the West to publish jointly the full account of Nazi diplomacy."

The Russians said that publication of the documents which linked Germany and Russia before World War II to schemes for Eastern Europe was done without "careful, objective verification" and "could only lead to a worsening of relations between the member states of the anti-Hitlerite coalition."

"The statement of Anglo-American circle does not correspond to fact," it added.

Committee for March 1 in Columbia "to determine the future course of the Party."

The Committee, with one representative from each of the 46 counties plus the National Democratic Committeewoman, Mrs. C. L. Wheeler, of Dillon, and the National Committeeman, Sen. Johnston, is the policy-making body of the Party between conventions," he commented.

"We will have a full and generous discussion," of recent events affecting our State and our State Democratic Party, including (1) the President's civil rights program; (2) the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Baltimore, Md., allowing Negroes to vote in our State Primary."

He said the next State Convention is set for May 19 but the Executive Committee might decide to call one earlier. Plans for elections will be completed then, he said.

Chairman McGrath, in commenting on reports that he would hit Dixie's "sore spot" when he speaks in Atlanta, told The Constitution's Washington Bureau:

"I have accepted an invitation to address the dinner celebration arranged by Georgia Democratic leaders for March 5 and I expect to go. The subject of my talk has not been decided, but it will be in keeping with the friendly spirit of co-operation in which the invitation was extended."

Party national headquarters officials said McGrath could be relied upon to "exercise good manners and not pick a fight."

Rep. Camp characterized major points in the Civil Rights program as "a dangerous intrusion of private rights." He said the Truman proposal for establishing a Federal Fair Employment Practice Commission would absolutely demoralize industrial relations in Georgia and other Southern states.

"I deplored the fact that our Party has to come out and express itself on issues of this kind," Camp said. "The FEPC is one of the most dangerous intrusions of private rights ever conceived. Anti-lynching legislation has been introduced in Congress for forty years. It is the opinion of all thoughtful men of Congress that bills like this and the FEPC and anti-poll tax law are unconstitutional.

In a speech on the floor of the House, Rep. Pace charged that the President was placing political preferment above the welfare and loyalty of the South. He said the hour is drawing near when the people of the section "must counsel among themselves upon a future course of action."

"We of the South had thought that our cherished traditions and the right of the people in each State to conduct its own affairs would be guarded and protected by the leaders of our own Party," Pace said. "That our confidence was misplaced can no longer be questioned."

In Washington, another Southern Congressman, Rep. Harris, Democrat, Arkansas, asked President Truman to refrain from further insistence on enactment of the civil rights program, cautioning that ignoring of such a great segment of the Democratic Party (Southern Democrats) could well cause another revolt in many States.

Presidential Press Sec. Charles Ross, however, denied a prediction by one of Mr. Truman's Congressional advisers that the administration would retreat a little on the Civil Rights program. The source had predicted Mr. Truman would not insist upon legislation to end segregation on railroads and other interstate transportation. Sen. Eastland, Democrat, Mississippi, declared that if Southerners stand together they can deny the Democratic Presidential nomination to anyone who opposes their views on civil rights.

By withholding its electoral votes, the South can defeat in 1948 any Democratic candidate, Eastland told the Senate in a speech blasting the Truman proposals.

WEATHER

48 hours deluged Gainesville. Rivers were still rising in the section late Monday, and dirt roads were badly cut up.

The widespread rains, farmers complained, had prevented Winter plowing, and retarded growth of clover, small grain and cover crops. Business was at a virtual standstill in many Georgia communities as slick, muddy roads virtually cut farmers off from town.

Bitter cold that covered the nation from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic Seaboard brought a warning from Sec. of the Interior J. A. Krug that fuel shortages might become "even more widespread and severe."

The Weather Bureau was so busy recording sub-freezing temperatures over the nation it had little time to observe its seventy-eighth anniversary. The mercury dropped below zero Monday night in Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Central and Northern Michigan and the New England States. No immediate relief was seen for the areas. At 30 degrees below zero, Caribou, Me. was the coldest spot in the nation. Sub-normal temperatures gripped the entire Eastern half of the country except Southern Florida.

but dealings were among the slowest in five months, and many leaders closed in the minus column.

The livestock declines resulted in a drop in business in the New York meat market, with butchers, chain stores and restaurant operators losing interest.

Cotton prices fell in New York, and wholesale butter prices there dropped 3¼ cents a pound for top grade.

Retail prices of flour, lard, bacon, steaks and bread continued downward, but the trend was not strong enough to indicate that it was general or permanent. At New York National Sugar Refining Company lowered its price for bulk sugar to 7¾ cents a pound from 8 cents.

Meanwhile, last week's spectacular market break brought the following developments Monday:

1. At Washington, a congressional committee ordered an investigation into the break for possible evidence that "insiders" evaded a loss or even profited by it. Rep. Andresen, Republican, Minnesota, charged that "speculators tuned to the pipeline of inside information" had dodged losses or even made "tremendous profits in a few days."

2. The Senate-House Economic Committee, by an 8-to-0 vote, recommended rationing grain for liquor making through October. The controls lapsed Jan. 31. Earlier, a subcommittee of the economic group had voted unanimously to restore controls on the industry.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson has denied a statement by Andresen that he had reported a leak in advance of the public announcement of Government grain purchasing plans.

3. Anderson declined to go along with a proposal by the Chicago Board of Trade that the amount of required margin (down payment) on grain transactions be reduced.

A dozen top businessmen foresaw a general downturn in prices, but a Government economist said that although "we may be closer to the catching-up period than general price trends have indicated, the inflationary current still is very strong."

The Rent Control Problem

From the standpoint of the average American, one of the most important problems facing the Eightieth Congress is action on rent control. The present rent control act expires at the end of the current month and unless Congress reimposes restrictions the lid will be off on March 1.

The full Senate Banking Committee has rejected a recommendation of a subcommittee, that controls be lifted in cities showing a vacancy rate of one percent and granting a 15 percent blanket increase where landlords can show operating costs have risen 30 percent since rent controls began.

Rent control in a nation following the principal of free enterprise presents a highly complex problem. There can be little doubt that many landlords actually have suffered under the regulations. Likewise, there is no gainsaying the assertion that a great many others, through evasion of one sort or another, have gouged the public in a conscienceless manner.

There is a school of economic thought that insists that if controls were removed the housing shortage would solve itself in a very short time. But just as many, if not more, belong to the opposite school which contends that the renting public, particularly the fixed income groups, would suffer unnecessarily by such a move.

On the one hand it hardly seems fair to force landlords, through federal regulation, to bear more than their share of the burden of inflation. On the other hand, it would seem little short of criminal to force the hardship of sky-high rents on the millions of families just edging by under current high prices of cost-of-living items.

Congress' problem, then, is to work out an equitable arrangement—one that will encourage erection of new housing to close the gap and, at the same time, preserve the solvency insofar as possible of those who could not afford rentals fixed at the highest price the traffic would bear.

This being an election year, the public can be certain Congress will do its utmost to meet these requirements.

Favoritism Before the Law?

Our courts constitute the foundation of our law-enforcement system.

They must have the respect, as well as command the fear of the public at large if they are to operate with maximum efficiency.

To earn that respect, they must function impartially and without regard to the social or financial status of the accused. Evidences of inconsistency and of tempering justice with favoritism cannot but undermine public confidence.

Last week, in Fulton Superior Court, three youths were sentenced to prison terms, ranging from 18 months to two years, for stealing automobiles. They admittedly had worked for a garageman.

The sentences, in view of the nature of the crime, may not be too severe.

But the general public finds it difficult to reconcile such stiff punishment with the fact that the affluent and influential person for whom they committed the crime was let off with what, for one of his means, was merely a nominal fine.

So is respect for law destroyed.

A Dairy Voice Speaks Up for Margarine

One of the most significant aspects of the current intensified effort to remove the discriminatory taxes on margarine is the revolt against the butter trust by the press and public even in dairying sections.

The Milwaukee Journal, for instance, is published in the heart of the Wisconsin dairy belt and is a recognized spokesman for that section.

Thus there is more than a little importance in the following recent Journal editorial, calling for repeal of margarine taxes.

"Again there is considerable agitation for the removal of the Federal tax on oleomargarine. It is argued that many cannot afford to pay the current high prices for butter. It is argued, too, that margarine is a clean, beneficial table fat, deserving its rightful place in our national diet. It is asserted that the tax serves only to raise the price of a wholesome product to those who prefer it or who cannot afford butter.

"This time the pressure for repeal is coming from many sources. The consumer is, of course, making his voice heard, but now heads of many public institutions and some farmers are also joining the appeal. The institutions say their budgets are strained unduly by the decree that they must use only butter—at present high prices.

"Isn't it time to end this business of penalizing the use of margarine through high license fees and taxes? The Federal tax on white oleo is, of course, only one-quarter of one cent a pound, but if the oleo is naturally noticeably yellow, it must be bleached to avoid the 10 cents tax which goes on the product if "yellow in color." Wholesalers and retailers must also pay substantial fees, particularly if they sell colored margarine.

"Removal of the Federal restrictions would not, of course, help us very much in Wisconsin. We would still have our fees and cur 15 cents a pound tax. It would, however, make possible the sale of colored oleo in this State without added penalty—and it might eventually lead to repeal of our law, too.

"Wisconsin dairymen now have a large market for fluid milk. That market, as well as the market for cheese, is constantly increasing. Wisconsin farmers are now also producing great quantities of soybeans, the oil of which goes into margarine manufacture. There is, therefore, now not even the same pocketbook appeal which caused the passage of the discriminatory legislation.

"Wisconsin will be wise the day it decides to sell butter and all other dairy products strictly on their merit."

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Margarine Taxes

Editor Constitution: After reading the articles written by you and Doris Lockerman, the Woman's Editor, on the subject of the great handicap under which we are eating margarine, a very necessary food item in our diet, I intend to write Sen. Russell to do something about this to help us people here in the South obtain our margarine colored without the unfair tax now imposed.

I believe everybody who reads these very interesting departments of your paper should write their Senator and ask for help at a time when we need it so badly.

Time To Quit

Editor Constitution: The Truman intention to use Federal power and snoopers to abolish sensible race segregation and States' rights could prove a calamity to the entire nation, including the deluded Negroes whose votes are being bought by this Truman alliance with the creed of the CIO and the Communist Party.

Mr. Truman joins the ranks of those who, in the past 15 years, schemed and hatched the rotten system of control of the majority by the use and political manipulation of a self-seeking, balance of power minority.

It now becomes the duty of genuine Democrats to close ranks, rebuild and rededicate our party for honorable service to those people of the nation, who believe that our safe future depends upon a political party willing to work for the greatest good of the greatest number.

Mr. Truman may get the nomination of the Philadelphia mongrel convention. We of the South owe it to our country to call a genuine Democratic convention, and not in Philadelphia.

Plenty of Smoke

Editor Constitution: We note that the Slide Rule Committee, appointed by the Mayor, asks the public to tell them about smoking locomotives. About all any smoke inspector has to do, is stay down on DeKalb Avenue, almost any day or hour, near the Georgia Roundhouse. Most all bad actors will be found there.

There are now about four inspectors, averaging about $250 per month each, with about half as many locomotives as I had to handle at $100 per month alone up to 1941 when I quit with old age and bad health.

The only large building downtown that I see smoking occasionally is the Fulton County Courthouse. Take a gander at the carloads of high volatile coal on the Courthouse lot on Hunter Street, to be consumed under old-fashioned boilers and hand fired at that, with volumes of smoke and great waste.

Is That the Reason?

Editor Constitution: Why must we, the people, put up with the high cost of living when people in the European countries eat free off of us?

That is the reason our prices of food and clothing have gone up and wages down. The Government is sending all our food and clothes over to them that are too lazy to work and build up their land and country.

Help to Farmers

Editor Constitution: I note a letter recently in your Pulse of the Public criticizing the Market Bulletin.

I have made my living for the last several years farming and I have found the farm paper much help to me and to other farmers.

I can't see how anyone could criticize Hon. Tom Linder on this great Farm Bulletin.

Ignorance Is Not Refreshing

The late Bishop Candler said that for most persons the process of thinking was not thinking at all, but merely a rearrangement of prejudices.

I find myself thinking of that as I hold in hand a letter in which the writer is berating the European Recovery Program, geenrally known as the Marshall Plan.

"If I know my history," he wrote, "there was no Marshall Plan for the South, after the War Between the States. The people just went to work and solved the problem for themselves. We didn't need any help or ask for it."

There was more of the same unrefreshing ignorance. And, incidentally, he does not know his history.

The South sought desperately to get help and understanding when the War Between the States ended.

The tragedy is she did not. Lincoln's plans for a Southern aid plan died with him.

Instead, we got repression.

Blind? Does not the gentleman who wrote the letter see any connection between the fact that the South today is financially the poorest section of the United States and the tragic fact there was no "Marshall Plan" for the South after the war?

Does not the fact that we have the lowest average income on farm and in pay envelopes illustrate just how badly we needed help to establish industry and trade?

We have the fewest hospitals; the lowest social security payments.

We spend as much as we can, but we still spend less on our children's education than other States, which means they have a better opportunity than our children. And that galls me.

These and many other factors grow directly out of the fact that when the War Between the States was ended, we were not helped, but oppressed.

Exploited Instead of an aid bill we had bills of exploitation. There were many new factories in the North and in New England. They were plants which had been enlarged in size and number to produce goods for the army and the conduct of the war. There were hundreds of new shoe factories, new woolen and cotton plants, new plants to produce blankets, uniforms (which could be reconverted to suits), and hundreds of others which would be reconverted from war production to peacetime production. They could turn out china, silverware, furniture, rugs, and all the items classed as consumer goods.

When the radical Congress got control of the country they went to work to subsidize those factories and also all the new shipbuilding and shipping companies.

Wealth The last investigation on tariffs, in about 1933, revealed that the State of Connecticut, for example, received more wealth from tariff protection alone than the total income of any five Southern States.

And yet there are those today who speak out of a vast store of wind in their heads and actually seem to point with pride to the fact that instead of being given a fair, humanitarian deal when the South had lost the war, its factories were ruined, its economy blocked by freight rates and tariffs.

Are they glad of it?

Are they happy we were deliberately impoverished and made into a colonial possession, used to supply raw materials to add to the wealth of the North and of New England where skilled, well-paid workers added more wealth to their region by manufacturing fine woolens, cottons, fabrics, furniture and all the great amount of consumer goods used by the nation? Don't they see that we should have been aided?

Thieves Do they not know any history at all? Don't they know of the agents who for years were allowed to confiscate and steal the cotton crop; take land, and otherwise consume the assets of "traitors"—with them and some corrupt military governor the sole judges of who was and who was not a traitor?

In God's name let the South read and know its history and eliminate those who seem to think it a fine thing we didn't get a helping hand to restore our economy but were instead legalized into poverty.

The South's history happens to be one of the finest arguments there is for voting the Marshall Plan.

Almost as Bad There are other things which also drive one leaping up and down and to tearing of hair.

That is the idea of those who keep insisting the South ought to secede from the North politically. We were badly, even ruthlessly, treated. But what's done is done. We lost.

We can't any more become a political entity now than we could when John C. Calhoun, rich from his fields and the gold mines at Dahlonega, Ga., was advocating it. History was pressing on him, too, and he didn't like it.

Yet, if we had enough spellbinders we probably could work up enough emotions to try and become a political entity.

Answer Suppose we did. Suppose we did throw the election into the House of Representatives?

Where would we be?

Well, we would arouse the anger and hostility of the rest of the nation to the point that the control of Congress would impose upon us even more distasteful legislation. We would destroy what strength our Democratic Congressmen have. We would invite upon ourselves new disasters. We would be at the mercy of the House.

The plain truth is, we need a two-party system. And the only reason we haven't got it is that a lot of persons who think and believe "Republican party" won't vote it because of the name.

We are, and cannot be, a political and economic entity.

We have got to get a better share out of our country by participating more in it and by developing our own strength.

We can do so only by meeting our responsibilities—and some of them are painful and unpopular.

Peanuts on 3,000,000 West African Acres

The peanut is one of Georgia's leading crops. Within a few years there may be a new area of peanut production, competing for the world trade.

West Africa has recognized the importance of the lowly goober, for oil, for food and cattle feed, for the multiplicity of by-products which are taken from it.

They are planning to turn 3,000,000 acres of West African farm lands to peanut production. Whether or not they are making the mistake of placing too much reliance on a single crop, such plans cannot fail to have direct effect upon the values of Georgia's peanut crop.

A Big Problem In West Africa there is one great problem which must be overcome. That is the dread sleeping sickness, carried by the tsetse fly, which decimates the population and saps the strength of the workers. Never doubt, science will conquer that enemy, just as science has conquered others which seemed to block the road of man's dreams.

Only recently a meeting was held at Brazzaville, French Equatorial Africa, attended by representatives from every British, Portuguese, Belgian and French colony. Their agenda was the making of plans for the eradication of the sleeping sickness and the agricultural development of all West Africa. That peanut production project is only one of many.

There is a government-backed agency known as the Gold Coast Industrial Development Corporation. Capital, $400,000. The colonial governments will take shares as additional capital is required.

The plans are almost endless in variety and scope. All of them, though, have one idea in common as motivation. That is, to relieve Europe's crippling shortages of raw materials and of foods. They see in Africa an area which can supply not only all her own needs, but all the needs of Europe. In short, Africa can be made a practically inexhaustible stock pile and food pantry for Europe.

If those dreams come true, you can readily see what an effect African development will have on American economy.

The productivity for European consumption has, too, another objective.

That is, to permanently cure the chronic African problem of poverty and low productivity.

The African native has never been much of a producer. He has been content to scratch the soil just enough to meet his own simple needs and he has seen no reason why he should labor for anything beyond those needs.

The Pioneers A century ago the pioneers were spreading across America. The early settlers found the bleaching bones of those who had gone before, pointing the way to the riches of our own West.

Today the era of the pioneers is practically over in America. All our land has been opened. There is still fantastic wealth here, but the adventure of the new now lures more strongly from other portions of the world.

The pioneering spirit is calling men to Australia, to many places in the East.

But I believe it calls more strongly to Africa than any other land. For there is the untapped wealth. There is the promise. What was once the Dark Continent seems destined in the years ahead to become a new Continent of Opportunity.

Whoops!

Story of Mary Garden

A 70-year-old opera singer is living in comfort on the Riviera today because her father was a very smart fellow.

Do you know the Mary Garden story? Well, it's one for the book, and if the the book hasn't been written, it's because no one would believe it.

Let's imagine—God forbid!—that I'm working for the movies. The studio which hired me once made a delightful dollar with a picture about an opera singer. Naturally, it's looking for another exactly like it. After months of research in poolrooms and swimming pools, I bounce into the bossman's office and lay the following synopsis on his desk:

WE PICK UP Mary Garden in Scotland where she was born in 1877. When she was six, her family moved to Chichopee, Mass. Next Chicago, where she gave a violin concert at 12. Then Paris and the Left Bank.

Our heroine becomes "the Toast of the Continent." She is tall, bosomy and beautiful. Kings sit in boxes and applaud, and queens give them a good talking-to when they get home.

1907. (Establish by fluttering pages of calendar.) Oscar Hammerstein's grandpappy engages Mary for season of opera in New York at $1,800 a night—nine zillion Truman dollars.

For the next 20 years, our heroine is seldom off the front page.

During World War I, there's another socko sequence. When the shooting starts, Mary disguises herself in Zouave garb and tries to enlist in the French Army as a boy. Her curves give her away (get it?) and she turns her Versailles home into a hospital for wounded soldiers.

When Mary gets into the big dough, her father insists on his share of the loot. Says it's coming to him for the piano lessons he once staked her to. Mary is a good girl, and rather than bite the hand which once walloped her with a hairbrush, she kicks in regularly. At one time she's making as much as $200,000 a year. But the more she makes, the more her old man demands as his cut of the take.

WHATEVER money Mary Garden manages to hold out, she invests in the stock market. Then comes the crash of '29, and she's wiped out. And by this time, her voice has developed some rough edges and good paying jobs are a sometime thing.

"I guess this ends the payments to pop," she says to herself. Mary writes her father a letter and asks him to come around and see her. And she's almost glad of the chance to tell the old buzzard the well has dried up.

Before the postman can deliver the letter, her father ups and dies. A few days later, his lawyers notify Mary she is his only heir and he has left her well over a million dollars. (The reading of the will should be solid murder.)

It's the same money, of course, that her father had whined and wheedled out of her over the years. The old man had always been suspicious of show business and had been haunted by the story of the star who ends up broke.

Mary Garden is still living. In 1942, the papers said something about her writing an autobiography. The Paris office can check on where we can contact her. You might open the picture with a shot of the Mediterranean, the sun sinking in the sea, and the old opera singer signing a contract to let us make a picture of her life. And then tell the whole story backwards, because it makes just as much sense that way.

$120,000 Will Buy A Lot of Teeth...

Max Baer is being sued for $120,000 for hitting a stranger in the mouth.

That must be another fellow.

The Baer I'm thinking about couldn't do $1.20 worth of damage . . . not even at today's prices.

He was a one-man pacifist movement. And the greatest dancer since Nijinsky. But he couldn't punch his way out of a paper bag with a blow torch in either hand.

Oh, he had the psysique all right. Also the public relations department. In fact, he was a great all-around fighter until the bell rang. Then he was all-around . . . on the floor.

Baer sued for $120,000 damages. He can win that case with just one witness—Jim Braddock.

Russia Can't Compete With U. S. Production

WASHINGTON—For the benefit of those who still may be laboring under the illusion that the United States is headed for a war with Russia, nothing is better designed to disabuse their minds than comparative figures now available on the industrial potential of the two countries.

After analyzing the figures if anyone still thinks that war with Russia is imminent, he will need to have his head examined.

It offers the most convincing thesis on the subject yet presented. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, the retiring Army Chief of Staff, must have had the figures in mind when, in delivering his valedictory to the Washington press corps the other day, he said Russia does not want war now because she is in "no position to carry on a global war." He said he was "certain" as to this.

Secretary of State Marshall, the former Chief of Staff who directed the great Allied war effort, is known to feel the same way about it. He has made no public statement, but sources close to him say he agrees with Gen. Eisenhower fully.

Figures The figures tell their own story. They are based upon information in the hands of the United States and British Governments. In its current issue the United States News appraises them in a way that can be easily understood.

In overall capacity, industrial and otherwise, Russia, the magazine points out, is some 45 years behind this country. In 1940, before the war with Germany, the Russian economic potential was about equal to what it war in this country in 1902.

She suffered a setback during the war from which she is still recovering. During the war years, due to the devastation of invading forces, she lost 58 percent of her rolling stock, 45 percent of her steel production, 44 percent of her electrical capacity, and 58 percent of her coal production, to mention only a few of the major items.

Her economic potential dropped during that time from 42 percent to only 25 percent of ours. So that by 1950, which will mark the end of her current five-year recovery program, her potential will equal only what it was in this country in 1904.

If present trends are continued, she will by 1960, 12 years hence, achieve an economic position comparable to what ours was in 1915, or 33 years ago, it is estimated.

Transport A few comparative figures are interesting. Not counting the destruction brought on by the war, Russian railroad mileage in 1940 was about equal to what it was in the United States in 1872, the magazine points out. Despite the fact that she is a much larger country with a much greater population to serve, her rail mileage for that year was only 57,323 as against 226,000 miles in the United States. She is even further behind in highways.

The roads in Russia are so rough, for example, that the average life of an automobile or truck is said to be only 8,000 miles. After that they are shaken to pieces. Our cars and trucks are good for 100,000 miles at least.

The same discrepancy exists in worker efficiency in the two countries. In this respect it is estimated that by 1960 she will be nowhere near what we had attained as far back as 1915. One of her great industrial weaknesses is the lack of skilled workers. The per capita production there is less than half what we have accomplished.

It all boils down to the obvious fact—obvious even to the Kremlin—that Russia is in no position to compete with the huge industrial might of the United States. We can out-produce them many times over in every field, save manpower.

Power And the importance of this is that modern warfare is conducted from the product of industrial output. The balance of power rests with the nation which can produce the most ships, the most planes, the most guns and bombs.

Russia is so far behind us in this capacity that her leaders are bound to realize that it would be sheer suicide for them to invite war with us. The Japs have just been given an enduring lesson on this subject. With their meager little 7,000,000 tons of steel production, they dared to declare war on a nation producing 90,000,000 tons of steel, which is the basis of all military effort.

No one can impute to the Russians the folly of making the same mistake. That is what Gen. Eisenhower meant when he said he was "certain" the Russians do not want war now because they are unable to carry on a global war with us.

The figures should be reassuring enough to anoyone who has been misled by the war propaganda that has been bantered about. They are convincing enough to dispel all remaining doubts on the subject.

Trouble and a Worn-Out Stove

"You remember the stove in the shack at the mountains?" she said.

"Uh-oh," I thought to myself. "Here we go again."

"Why, certainly," I said out loud. "I remember the stove. It is a very fine stove. It is a good electric stove and heats up hotter than the hinges of ——."

"It is not a good stove," she said. "And you know it. You remember last Spring when we went up there there were chipmunks in it."

"They didn't hurt it," I said. "They just slept in it because they wanted a nice cozy place. Surely you would not begrudge a poor chipmunk room in your stove during a hard Winter. It is not as if he turned the stove on to warm himself and thus ran up the electric bill. He just slept in there among the wires, avoiding the cauld, cauld blast."

"I am not talking about chipmunks. We chased them out and that was all right," she said. "I am talking about the stove itself. It is busted inside. The thing the coil sits on is rusted through and if you are not careful the coffee pot falls out of sight, down inside the stove. We have got to have a new stove."

"We have not got to have a new stove," I said. "Do you know what new stoves cost now? They are making them out of 24-carat gold leaf, and the coils that heat up are made out of platinum. They are building them with jewels in them now, like a ruby-jewel watch. You know what your pioneer great-grandmother cooked on? She cooked on an open fire, at the family hearth. We must all be strong in these times of high prices. We must have the true pioneer spirit. We must make things do."

"Listen, Daniel Boone," she said. "I was a pioneer all last Summer. While you were lolling on the sand under a palm tree on some unpronounceable island I was making that stove do."

"You are a fine girl," I said. "No doubt you can make it do for another season or two and maybe by that time prices will have come down."

"Maybe by that time I will have come down —with a case of nervous prostration," she said. "That stove will drive anybody nuts. I cannot fix that stove."

"Now, now," I said soothingly. "Surely you did not give it your most earnest attention. Just what steps did you take to fix the stove so the coffee pot would not fall down through the top?"

"I won't tell you," she said. "I still shiver to think about it."

"Go on," I said. "You know we have no secrets between us. Tell me. Maybe I can detect some flaw in your technique!"

"You won't laugh?" she asked.

"Cross my heart," I said.

"Well," she said. "First, when the coffee pot fell through the top I went down to where they were fixing the dock and got a piece of wood about the size of a half a brick and I brought it back and put it down inside the stove, to brace the heating coil so it wouldn't fall through. Then I put dinner on and went out in the living room and sat down."

"Then?" I asked.

"Then," she said, 'the kids came running in yelling the house was on fire and I ran into the kitchen and the room was full of smoke and flames were shooting up through the top of the stove and everything on the stove and the whole house smelled horribly of burning wood and creosote. My wooden block had burst into flame."

"Grim," I said. "Very grim. Then what?"

"Then I put out the fire. I threw water on it, soaking everything. Then I fished the coffee pot out of the inside of the stove, and threw away the vegetables that were swimming in water and smelling of creosote. Then I braced the stove eye again and started dinner again."

"What did you brace it with this time?" I asked.

She hesitated a minute.

"I braced it with a can of tuna fish," she said.

"So?"

"So I went back and sat down again and in about five minutes there was a terrific bang and I rushed back to the kitchen and what had happened was the can of tuna fish had gotten hot and exploded, and had blown tuna fish all into the inside of the stove, in among all the wire, and it took me a week to get all the tuna fish out of the works.

"Now," she said, pinning me down. "Do I or do I not get a new stove?"

"Maybe," I said, "maybe. Anyway, I will tell you what I will do. I will buy you a new can of tuna fish."

FRED OTHMAN

Uncle Sam Bars Anti-Hang-over Whiskey

WASHINGTON—Dr. Frank Shipman, the only man I know who never gets a hang-over on the morning after, is losing hope of shipping anti-heebie-jeebie whiskey from his Kentucky distilleries.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue, which seems to believe that a man who drinks at night deserves later to suffer in proportion, won't let him. Until the Government changes its mind and allows his medicated ambrosia to banish the hang-over from the land, I don't intend to touch the stuff with alcohol in it. Too hard on the nerve cells.

Dr. Shipman is Vice President of the Brown-Foreman Corporation, of Louisville, where he distills against his will old-fashioned bourbon of the best quality, but with incipient hang-overs included in each bottle. This saddens him.

"So unnecessary," he said. "I drink enriched whiskey myself, and I haven't had a hang-over in years."

His discovery of the highball without regrets dates back to the days when he was professor of chemistry at the University of Louisville, working with vitamins. But let the non-jittery Dr. Shipman tell his own story:

"I had a pet theory (he said) that there were two fundamental causes of the hang-over: One was that the alcohol tended to dissolve the cells on the nerve ends in the human system and thereby made it—the system —act jumpy. The other was that a drunk won't eat. And if there's anything he needs, it's food.

"Vitamin B-1 seemed to be the solution to both problems. It had the effect of restoring the nerve cells. It also stimulated the flow of gastric juices. So I tried a little experiment."

He certainly did. He took a bottle of his own whiskey, stirred in an appropriate slug of vitamins, dropped over to the old Greyhound night club in Indiana, across the Ohio River from Louisville, and didn't leave until he'd drunk it all. This scientific research couldn't be completed in a hurry. It was 3 a. m. before Dr. Shipman fell into bed, wondering how he'd feel the next day.

"I felt wonderful," he reported. "No shakes. No headache. Eyes bright. Appetite good."

Further experiments, all with the same happy result, led Dr. Shipman to apply in 1936 for a patent on enriched whiskey. The patent office gave him all rights on this boon to drinking humanity and Dr. Shipman foresaw the day when nobody'd willingly drink whiskey without vitamins.

Only the Bureau of Internal Revenue said nothing doing. One law says everything that goes into a bottle of whiskey has got to be mentioned on the label. Another rules that whiskey is whiskey and not a tonic. Dissolve a pill in it and it isn't whiskey any longer.

For 12 years now Dr. Shipman has argued these points every time he's had to come to Washington on business connected with the distilling industry. This has been frequently; I ran into him when he appeared before the Senate-House Joint Committee trying to allocate grain for the liquor makers. He hasn't had any luck on the vitamins yet, but he is not an embittered man. Just hopeless.

So it was then that he told me the formula for avoiding hang-overs. Anybody, he said, could do it.

"Before a large night," he continued, "just take two vitamin B-1 tablets of 33,000 units each. You don't need to mix 'em with whiskey. Just swallow 'em. And you'll feel fine the next day, no matter what."

I don't guarantee this. I don't even recommend it. I'm just reporting it. As far as I'm concerned, you're on your own.

A Price Increase for Natural Gas?

WASHINGTON—When considerable pressure develops behind a bill in Congress affecting a special interest, it is a sound idea to poke around and see who benefits from it and how much—in short, "who gets the money."

Applying this to the Rizley-Moore Natural Gas Bill now pending before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, it is discovered that a comparatively few big oil and pipe-line companies that own and control most of the natural gas fields would reap "perfectly tremendous profits" from the price increase made possible by the measure. That's the way it was put by Leland Olds, Federal Power Commission member, in well-documented testimony before the Senate Committee.

In that same process, of course, the natural gas consumer would get nicked—to the tune of $50,000,000 a year, according to Federal Power Commission estimates. The measure passed the House last session. It was sponsored there by Rep. Rizley and in the Senate is sponsored by Sen. Moore, both Republicans from Oklahoma, a natural gas State.

The bill offers a double-barreled method for price increases. First, it would change the pipe line rate base hitherto used by FPC in fixing fair rates. Second, it would restrict the regulatory authority of FPC in such a way, Commissioner Olds testified, that the result "would be, in effect, to leave the natural gas business, in so far as consumers are concerned, practically unregulated."

Until recently the FPC unanimously opposed the Rizley-Moore Bill. In his testimony, Commissioner Olds called attention to the switch of position by two members, Nelson Lee Smith, Chairman, and Harrington Wimberly, who, he said, now find themselves "in substantial agreement with the proponents of the Moore-Rizley Bill." He referred to proposed amendments to the Natural Gas Act submitted to the Senate Committee by these two.

Supporting Mr. Olds in his opposition to the measure and to the Smith-Wimberly amendment proposals is Commissiner Claude L. Draper. The Smith-Wimberly amendments have the backing of Burton N. Behling, a Commission assistant whose nomination to a vacancy on the five-man Commission is now pending before the Senate Committee.

Commissioner Olds also recalled that the Commission, in a 1944 report on the first five years operation of the Natural Gas Act, held that this experience had "demonstrated that it is an effective instrument of regulation." That report was signed by present Chairman Smith, as well as by Commissioners Olds and Draper, the three who are still members of FPC. He referred to that in connection with Mr. Smith's present position.

For the cost-of-production basis now used by FPC in fixing rates, the Rizley-Moore Bill would substitute "prevailing field price," and the Smith-Wimberly proposals "commodity value," which Mr. Olds holds would be the same in effect. He contended that such a vague basis would only return natural gas regulation to the confusion that made early utility regulation so difficult. In replying to the argument that the proposed new rate base would promote competition, Commissioner Olds said, "There is coming into being such a tremendous control in the hands of a few corporations that it is questionable whether competitive forces any longer, or much longer, will determine the price of gas."

As an example of concentration of control, he cited the Hugoton and Texas Panhandle fields where 25 corporations control 77 percent of the 5,600,000 acres. Phillips Petroleum, the largest, controls 20 percent of acreage in Texas Panhandle and 15 percent in Hugoton, just over 900,000 of the 5,600,000-acre total.

A five percent increase in price would mean an extra $1,616,450,000 for these 25 companies over the life of their reserves, which is estimated at 40 years, Mr. Olds said. Estimates of price increase by the bill range from five to 10 percent. In the Texas Panhandle field, five companies control about three-quarters of the total, according to the Olds figures.

This may help somewhat to explain the rush to get the bill through Congress, all of which is cold comfort to the consumer. He is kept in the dark by all the technical testimony and the high-sounding language and the specious reasoning.

Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood.—Revelation 1:5.

An old Scotch woman, visited by her pastor, said, "That was a grand sermon you preached last Sabbath at the Kirk." Seeking to test her sincerity he inquired, "And what was the text?" "Ah, Meenister! I dinna ken the text or the words. But I came back home and took the false bottom out o' my peck measure!"

O Thou who are everywhere and inevitable, we draw apart in quietness to meditate upon Thy ways. We are sensible of our need of Thee. Indeed, we cannot live without Thee. And yet, we are so easily separated from Thy presence by impotent idols of our own making. Forgive us, O forgive us, we pray. According to Thy everlasting mercy cleanse us of all infidelity, for Thy name's sake.

Failures Of Journalists

New York reporters are presumed to be good and New York by-line men and women to be stars. Both are fallacies.

An ambitious young journalist, a superior writer but lackadaisical, I am afraid, in his pursuit of fact, had occasion some time ago to discuss Barney Josephson, as the owner of the Cafes Society, uptown and downtown. He depicted Josephson as a wise but amiable cynic from Trenton who had no worse purpose than to amuse himself watching fools throw away money and sweep it up when they went home.

When Jimmy Kelly died lately, he was sent away with the conventional false and completely misleading obituary of an amusing New York "character" noted for his good works.

JOSEPHSON is a brother of Leon Josephson, one of the most sinister Communists in the United States. His Cafes Society have been hangouts for Communists and their fellow travelers for years. Barney, himself, although he is not identified as a party member, nevertheless has been so seriously implicated in the works and affairs of known Communists that there is no excuse for any New York by-line reporter to purport to give him the character treatment in a column or book, and totally ignore his political personality.

If the reporter knew of this phase of this man and deliberately concealed the most significant facts about him, he was guilty of a deception which certainly should bring his motives into question. If he had managed not to learn anything about Josephson's real background in the course of his professional slumming on the so-called Broadway beat, he is just a bad reporter who should be set to writing fiction, as such, or Sunday fantasies about the man-eating pitcher-plant of Patagonia.

Jimmy Kelly was a malodorous rogue who had been influential in New York politics for a quarter of a century, never to any good effect on the people or the institution of popular government.

KELLY, born Di Salvio, was a racketeer all his life. He was indicted for a murder in his early days and got away for lack of competent police work and prosecution although he undoubtedly did officiate at this killing. During prohibition he was an important bootlegger, not as a mere retailer and purveyor but as a major corruptionist in that larger field which extended to rum row and the Departments of Justice and the Treasury. He became, in time, an in-law and political and social patron of a rising young gunman named Little Augie Carfano, alias Pisano, who was to become notorious and a partner of the unspeakable George Scalise, in union rackets in New York and Chicago.

Di Salvio, alias Kelly, was last arrested seven or eight years ago on a routine charge of theft and was arraigned before Magistrate Aurelio, who treated him with the distinguished consideration due his political rank. In due course, then, Kelly placed in nomination the name of Aurelio for New York Supreme Court and Frank Hogan, the District Attorney, thereupon disclosed that Aurelio was a social and political confidant and colleague of Frank Costello, the most notorious gangster of them all at this point, and the successor to the eminence of Al Capone.

Costello, like Kelly and Aurelio, is of less desirable Italian stripe and they three had a sanguinary and temperamental kinship. It took a sordid but typical political feat of the New Deal—labor union monstrosity in New York to frustrate Mr. Hogan's expose. Thus Aurelio was elected and still sits in judgment on better citizens.

For many years, including my own time on the sport side, I have heard and read of this winsome and picturesque little cut-throat whose good works, upon analysis, proved to be the conventional hostages to favor and fortune sugared with a disgusting guise of charity. He was, in all emergencies, his old savage, sordid self until he died.

I CAN easily believe that the pundits who have essayed from time to time to give him a quaint and generally lovable character are simply ignorant of the facts. Many of this strange new tribe of parasites on journalism which the late Roosevelt called "excrescences" know absolutely nothing about the essential importance of the fact as the skeleton of comment or narrative. Some of them have had city side training and know better but conceive that the task of a columnist is to "entertain" with hackneyed slang and the dreary anecdotes of comedians who, perforce, for the last 25 years, have played under the auspices of the criminal underworld.

More positively, day by day, an important element of our journalism is being placed at the service of the evils which beset good government. There is a cult and a claque now busily imagining and warming a legendary Bill O'Dwyer. Thus the Mayor of New York is laundered of some important failures and tendencies and offered to the citizens as another of those sorry political monstrosities, the "grand guy." Our experience of grand guys is not reassuring.

Meanwhile thes same general personnel are noisily berating Mr. Hogan, the District Attorney, for his charges and disclosures of corruption in the sports rackets, notably at the Garden. It is a juvenile way to do but the popular, and, worse, successful, way is to line up on the side of the criminal corruptioneer and enemy of all decency and, with a hundred vulgar and banal voices, jeer at a public servant who has the bravery to recollect his oath and do accordingly.

Nothing Frightening About Death

Bernard Mannes Baruch, quoted in a magazine article, says he hasn't been afraid of death since he watched the easy death of his father—a doctor who had given his life to the service of mankind.

As the old gentleman lay dying, he seemed to be in a coma. But one of his sons leaned over the bed and made a statement that was untrue, and he shook his head. Then he stopped breathing. There was nothing to affright a child, much less a grown man.

Baruch's attitude toward death may be a result of unusual advantages. He says he is not afraid of anything. This unique state of mind also results from a rare combination of advantages. If a man stands six feet four and weighs 200 pounds; if he has been a professional fighter, trained by the top men of his class; and if he has several million dollars to stiffen his backbone, he has little reason to fear anything.

Nevertheless, Baruch's attitude is logical and should be universal. It is quite probable that man, like other animals, is born to die easily and with dignity.

THERE ARE races of men who seem able to die at will when they have grown tired of living. There are others who live long; keep their faculties unimpaired until the last, and then simply fall asleep. So all might die if all lived as Nature intended.

In rare instances, death is so unseemly and obscene that it robs man of all dignity. It seems a shameful unfairness.

But the "natural" death of old people is neither painful nor reluctant. There is no fear. In fact, many say to their doctors: "I am too tired to care." The will to live grows weaker as the body grows weaker.

Death—the act of giving up life—is not an ordeal to be dreaded. A merciful God has made death as easy as birth for those who live naturally. The dying oldster feels no more than the infant entering into life.

A DYING Senator, who was part Indian, said to the first Roosevelt: "I wish I could die like an old wolf—crawl out on a rock in the sun and go to sleep." We get close to our ancestors in spirit before we join them. Though a man's life has been full of pretense, he becomes humble and sincere at the end.

I have watched beside the death bed of two old men. Both weakened slowly; drifted into a coma that lasted two or three days; then suddenly relaxed and seemed to sink lower on their pillows. That was all. Something left their bodies and the mystery of it is the greatest of all mysteries.

"The public needs and is entitled to the services of the 'family physician' who has been supplanted largely by the specialist."—News story excerpt.

We would not be the one who would tearfully gaze . . . at the past and assert those were wonderful days . . . that the world of the present is wicked and vile . . . and has lost all that makes life and living worth while.

But we have to admit we have now reached the stage . . . in this highly developed and specialized age . . . when we need to bring all of this rush to a stop . . . and ease up on the pressure, or something will pop.

The doctors we knew, in the years that have flown . . . would deliver a baby or patch up a bone . . . sit up by your bed till the pain was relieved . . . and you didn't drop dead when the bill was received.

Now, don't get us wrong, for we freely confess . . . we fly to the specialist, in our distress . . . but we liked the old boy with his old-fashioned pills . . . the doctor that sent us those old-fashioned bills.

Leahy Hails Butts As Nation's Top Coach

ATHENS, Feb. 9—The nation's No. 1 football coach was a little late in arising. His plane was delayed and the trip from Atlanta to Athens wasn't completed until the wee hours of the morning.

Nevertheless, when Frank Leahy finally reached the breakfast table at Wallace Butts' house, his first remark was: "I feel right at home with that telephone ringing outside my room."

Butts grinned. "Yep," he said, "that's one thing we get our money's worth around here."

Over sausage, eggs and coffee (he refused the fried chicken), Leahy was quite willing to talk a little football.

Praise for his host and close professional friend, Butts, was first.

"I don't think there is a better coach in the business, college or professional, than Wally," he said. "I do not hesitate to admit that I've learned a lot of football through my association with him. There isn't a better one in the game."

What Leahy failed to add is that the Association has been mutually beneficial. Two heads are better than one in anything and especially in this football coaching business.

They teamed up with the College All-Stars against the Chicago Bears last year and were quite successful. And don't be surprised if they aren't doing the same thing again before long.

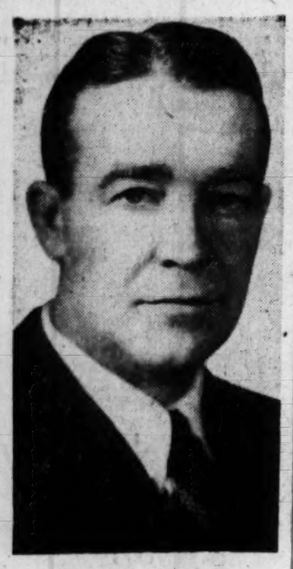

We got around to talking about Johnny Lujack, Leahy's great T-formation quarterback of last season.

Lujack recently signed with the Chicago Bears and there has been considerable speculation that George Halas, the Bear coach, will move him to left halfback.

"I know that's where they will play him," Leahy said. "We had him already to play the position last season but never got around to making the change. He may be even better at that spot than he was at quarterback.

"You know," he continued, "everybody knows Johnny is a great passer, runner, kicker and defensive back. But few recognize his ability as a pass receiver. I haven't seen a better one in my life."

All of which takes in a lot of territory because Frank surely has seen Don Hutson play.

FRANK LEAHY

"Another thing about him," Leahy continued, "is he is a better kid than he is a football player. He's an all-time All-America in my book."

Never Saw a Better Team

The Michigan-Notre Dame argument was next. Which was the better team?

"All I can say is this," Leahy said. "It's a shame the two teams couldn't have played, both for the sake of the game and for the fans. It surely would have been the game of the century and I believe quite an offensive show.

"As far as how it would have come out, I can't say. However, I'm a little prejudiced to my boys because I never saw a better football team in my life than they were during the last part of the season. They got better and better each Saturday."

Fans will better understand what he meant when they recall his statement during last season to the effect Notre Dame would play Michigan any time, any where and under any conditions.

'T' Is Best Offense

Leahy is generally recognized as the greatest exponent of the T-formation in college football.

Recently there has been a lot of talk about the defensive catching up with the 'T.' What does he think about it?

"I don't think so," he said. "I believe that the top T-teams of the nation year in and year out will have better offensive records than any other system.

"I found last season that our boys could cope with these modern defenses if they just blocked a little, which is necessary to make any offense go.

"I think the T-formation will be here for many years. There is only one change which may be noticeable next season. You probably will see more direct snaps to the fullback or halfbacks although that is nothing new as Wally here used it a lot when he had Trippi."

Asked for comment on the NCAA sanity code, Leahy smiled and remarked:

"I'm not qualified to discuss that as I'm not quite sure what it's all about."

Bulldogs Rally, Trip Moccasins

CHATTANOOGA, Feb. 9—The University of Georgia cagers came from behind here Monday night to defeat the Chattanooga Moccasins, 73 to 55.

Trailing by 34-28 at halftime, the Bulldogs did an about face to completely outplay the Mocs in the final period. Bobby Healey, who made only two field goals in the first half, registered 16 points in the second half to take high scoring honors for the night. Teammate Joe Jordan was second high scorer with 16.

George Carden, star Chattanooga guard, led his team's offensive with 1 counters.

Louise Suggs, Hopkins Bow In Finals, 2-1

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., Feb. 9—(AP)—Pat Devany and Marjorie Lindsay won the Women's International Four-Ball Golf tournament by beating favorites Louise Suggs and Jean Hopkins, 2 and 1, Monday.

Underdogs from the start, the Devany-Lindsay team defeated veterans Louise Suggs, of Atlanta, Ga., and Jean Hopkins, of Cleveland, O., 2 and 1 in the finals, carried over from Sunday when darkness halted play at the end of 34 holes.

Suggs and Hopkins held a 4-up lead at the end of the 18 holes and appeared well on their way to the championship, but the Devany-Lindsay team whittled away the lead and forged ahead on the 33rd.

It was the first time during the tournament the Suggs-Hopkins duo trailed their opponents. Lindsay won the 34th as darkness closed in.

Two-up and two to play, the Devany-Lindsay team had only to play it safe to win when play resumed. When Miss Hopkins missed her putt from 12 feet away, it was all over.

Hank To Sign As Player-Coach With Cleveland

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—(INS)—Slugging Hank Greenberg, veteran outfielder-first baseman,, left by plane for Cleveland Monday to sign as player-coach with the Indians in a deal which reportedly will lead to his buying into the club.

Greenberg's mission includes his appearance Monday night at a baseball writers' banquet, but he was uncertain as he left New York whether he would confer with Bill Veeck, Club President, before or after the affair.

However, the former home-run champion told International News Service he expects to sign a player-coach contract within a day or two.

(In Cleveland, Veeck admitted he is going to "talk business" with Greenberg, but otherwise refused comment.)

Jim Dickey Heads Back Up Baseball Ladder

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Jim Dickey, whose signing by the St. Louis Cardinals when he was a football and baseball star at West Fulton High School in 1944 caused ill feeling between the pro baseball and college football people, appears headed for the top in professional baseball after being bought outright by the Columbus (Ohio) Redbirds, of the American Association, over the weekend.

That is the studied opinion of inimitable Tubby Walton, who first signed the speedy Owl first baseman for the Cardinals.

The husky, 195-pounder, considered one of the fastest high school players ever to perform in these parts has had an "one-again off-again" career from the outset after gaining fame and winning All-NGIC laurels while doing a terrific job of halfbacking for the West Fulton football team. He sparked Henry Kemp's Owls to a highly unexpected NGIC grid crown in 1944.

The big lad, brother of the late Ray Dickey, an All-time West Fulton great, was being courted by many college football scouts the following spring when a lucrative Cardinal offer hied him into the ranks of professional baseball.

The Owl swifty, who bats and throws lefthanded, was setting the NGIC on fire with his long ball hitting and base stealing at the time. The Cards farmed him out to their Class B Piedmont League farm at Lynchburg, Va., where he won exceptional success for a raw 17-year-old rookie.

He went into the Navy in 1945, however, and when he came out in 1946 decided to give up the professional game. He played for the strong Whittier Mills nine, of the Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation, here last year while going to the Atlanta Pharmacy School.

The shy, black-haired boy with the graceful swing got the "bug" again recently and decided to give the pro game the good try again. No one was more amazed than he suddenly to discover he had been sold outright into the class AAA company of the American Association.

Few high school denizens of the diamond here have had greater big league potentialities than Dickey, who comes from the same section as Luke Appling, Chicago White Sox shortstop, not to mention the best baseball school of them all—West Fulton — where they have won seven of the last eight NGIC diamond titles.

He will report to the Columbus Spring training camp at Daytona Beach, Fla., early in March.

Young played with the Crimson Tide from 1934 to 1936 and later played six years with the Washington Redskins.

Smith Shades Richmond for GIAA Lead

Special to The Constitution.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 9—Coach Shirley Watkins' Smith High Smithies, of Atlanta, gained revenge and the GIAA leadership at the same time here Monday night by shading Richmond Academy, 33-32, in a game that was a thrilling nip-and-tuck engagement throughout.

The Blacksmiths, who bowed to Richmond in their season opener in Atlanta, 49-46, now have nine GIAA wins and one loss as compared to an 8-2 record for the Musketeers.

The Smithies held a 17-14 halftime lead, but the count was knotted 8-8 at the quarter and 25-25 at the three quarters mark. The visitors, playing without the services of Whitey Kuglar, their ace center who is in bed with mumps, surged ahead, 33-29, with three minutes left to play.

After that they played it cagey by freezing the ball and taking three time outs, each time when a Smith player had the ball and appeared about to be tied up. Richard Weathers plunked in a free throw and Leroy Towns a field goal in the last seconds for the home five but the Smith strategy assured them their victory.

Weathers, of the losers, was high point man with 13 counters, while Robert Tuck was tops for Smith with ten. W. A. Skelton's great floor play, savvy and all-round ability sparked the winners' attack.

Tulane Slips By Tech Here, 59-55

By BERT PRATHER

Tulane's Green Wave, currently holding down second place in the Southeastern Conference basketball race and sporting an excellent season record of 19 victories against two setbacks, ran into a redhot nest of Yellow Jackets Monday night at the Georgia Tech court and, after a blistering battle all the way, escaped with a 59-55 decision.

Sparked by the brilliant shooting of Big Jim Nolan and Colin Anderson, the Jackets were right in the thick of the game until four minutes to go in the final half when Melvin Payton broke a 54-54 tie to put the Greenies in the lead for keeps.

Nolan was high-point man of the night with 19 points, while Anderson was second man with six field goals and four charity tosses for 16.

Tulane, which lost its first Conference game, 50-49, to Alabama last Saturday in Tuscaloosa, evidently was not geared for such a game as the battling Jackets put up and as a result the Wave never enjoyed a comfortable lead.

Tulane jumped out into the lead shortly after the opening tipoff and held it until eight minutes to go in the half, when a lay up by Nolan put Tech out front, 32-22. Virgil Risner quickly placed the visitors back in the lead with a short flip and they maintained an advantage until the half. The score at the rest period was 28-23.

In the second half, Coach Cliff Wells' Hoosier-studded squadron was in command until the clock showed 10 minutes to go. A field goal by Anderson knotted the count at 42-all. He was fouled on the play and made good the toss to give Tech the lead for the second and last time, though the Jackets did manage to tie the score three more times in the stretch, at 50-50, 52-52 and 54-all.

Payton and Risner hit for field goals to clinch the game for Tulane a few minutes later.

The game was one of the fastest and most interesting played here this season. The Jackets are definitely on the upswing despite the fact the loss dropped them in to the Conference cellar with a record of two wins and eight losses.

Coach McArthur used only one substitute. He sent in Jimmy Stewart to replace Forward Joe Keener, who injured his ankle midway the first half. Then when Keener came back he again sent Stewart in to rest Melvin Dold. Stewart's third appearance in the lineup came late in the fray when Anderson fouled out.

Alex Athas and Risner, with 14 points each, were top offensive men for the Greenies as highly rated Warren Perkins failed to click.

Football Is Genuine Democracy, Leahy Tells Athens Touchdowners

By F. M. WILLIAMS
Constitution Sports Writer.

ATHENS, Feb. 9—Notre Dame's Frank Leahy, as serious and as successful a speaker as he is a football coach, told more than 200 guests at the second annual Athens Touchdown Club party here Monday night that football is democracy of the purest form and declared right now is the time for athletics to lead the interference to rid America of everything and every person opposing the American way of life.

The man who last year piloted the Fighting Irish through their first undefeated untied season since the immortal Knute Rockne, paid tribute to the University of Georgia for keeping football alive during the recent war.

"Georgia, by failing to take the least line of resistance and quitting the game during the war, elected to keep playing with what material was available, and in my opinion that is as great a contribution to football as any school will ever make," Leahy declared.

Discussing athletics and democracy, Leahy said all athletic teams are GENUINE DEMOCRACY.

"Although at Notre Dame we have boys on athletic scholarships, just as at every other school, every student has a right to come out for the team. If he doesn't want to come out, he doesn't have to.

"There is no regimentation in athletics. It is all competitive." Nationality means nothing. On athletic teams there will be Poles, Germans, Italians and (with a smile) an occasional Irishman. They play side by side and pull together for the good of the team.

"Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if there were some way in Europe for this to happen?

"Football affords the perfect outlet for a person's competitive emotion. To me, there's nothing more thrilling than seeing a vast stadium rise to a man for the kickoff of a football game, then settle back to watch the play. Each fan projects himself into the play and when it is all over, he goes back home and forgets about it.

"Often, at football games, I've wondered just how a Communist felt looking at something so typical American.

The Notre Dame coach was introduced by Abit Nix, prominent attorney, who served as master of ceremonies.

Milton (Red) Leathers, a great Georgia guard in 1929-'30-'31, is President of the Touchdown Club and introduced Mr. Nix.

Only other speaker on the program was Coach Butts, who talked only briefly.

Among the prominent guests introduced were George Poschner and Frank Sinkwich, the former Bulldog All-American stars from Youngstown, Ohio; Dan Edwards, Captain of the 1947 Georgia team and Johnny Rauch, Alternate Captain of the same club.

The function was held at the Athens Country Club.

Brown, Roosevelt Vie In City League Feature

By JESSE OUTLAR

Brown's Johnny Rebs will resume their uphill struggle in an attempt to overhaul Smith and Murphy for a berth in the GIAA tournament when they clash with a fast-improving Roosevelt quintet in the feature game of a City League double-header at the Henry Grady gym tonight at 7:30.

After a slow start, the Rebs rallied to trim O'Keefe Saturday night for their fifth loop triumph and a victory over Roosevelt would put them on even terms with the two pace-setters in the win column. However, Brown has suffered two defeats while Smith sports an unblemished mark and Murphy has only one set-back.

O'Keefe Irish, still seeking their first victory after ten straight reversals including seven City set-backs, will take on Grady in the second game. This scrap will launch a busy week for the Irish, who meet Bass Thursday and battle Smith Saturday night.

Elsewhere, the Decatur Bulldogs get a chance to avenge an upset defeat earlier in the season, when they invade Russell tonight.

Druid Hills goes to Hapeville for a contest with Coach Bill Campbell's classy Hornet quintet and North Fulton plays host to Fulton in a traditional tilt.

Shorty Doyal's Marist Cadets will vie with Columbus High in what promises to be an even match at the Sports Arena. Against GIAA foes, Marist has won three and lost four and Columbus has racked-up five victories against seven defeats.

In the only out-of-town game, College Park tackles Canton in Canton.

Bo McMillin Confers With Lion Officials

DETROIT, Feb. 9—(AP)—Albin (Bo) McMillin, head football coach at Indiana University, conferred Monday with the management of the professional Detroit Lions but club officials said afterwards that "no definite offer" had been made.

It apparently was the first step taken by the new owners in their announced intention of seeking a "big name" coach.

Edwin Anderson, Vice President of the Detroit Football Co., confirmed that he, W. O. (Spike) Briggs and Phil Hart, also members, had met with the Hoosier coach.

McMillin indicated he was strictly a college man and declared there was little likelihood he would take a pro job at this time.

Weak, Watery Blood Blamed for Making Men and Women Look and Feel Older

THAN THEIR YEARS

How do you feel at the end of a day? Is that old time pep and drive lacking? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Thousands now regaining glowing good looks and vitality through the release of vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a general run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

CHANNING COPE'S ALMANAC:

Soil Temperature Experts in Order

TUESDAY, FEB. 10, 1948

Suggestion of the day: Several suggestions from the Experiment Station: Plant fruit trees, asparagus crowns, English peas, onions and cabbage. Fertilize old asparagus beds and fruit trees. Spray peach trees with dormant spray, using 3 percent oil emulsion or lime-sulphur, 1 to 8, but do not put on in freezing weather. Top-dress small grain in South Georgia by Feb. 15, in Middle and North Georgia by March 1. Secure planting seed—using CERTIFIED seed where possible. Provide beef herd with a balanced ration in order to produce healthy calves.

FESCUE CAN TAKE IT

Somewhere there must be an expert on soil temperatures and if there is, we wish he would come forward and let us get acquainted with him for it is beginning to dawn on us that there are lots of possibilities tied up in this question. Kudzu-grower H. L. Cromartie, of Albany, made a number of tests years ago in pecan orchards and found that there was a tremendous difference between the temperature (both Summer and Winter) where kudzu was planted and where it was not planted. The lands were warmer in Winter and cooler in Summer where the kudzu was established.. (Incidentally, Mr. Cromartie's testimony along this line is one of the regular features of the annual meeting of the Kudzu Club.)

I have observed for years the difference in the growth of bluegrass where it is protected from the hottest part of the Summer days. In fact, this may well be the determining factor, and before the discovery of Ky. 31 fescue, which can take the heat of our Summers and the cold of our Winters, I had come to believe that it would be well worthwhile to grow bluegrass in pastures interspersed with leguminous trees from which the bluegrass could draw its protection from sun in the Summer and frost in the Winter. A. Lee Andrews, the manganese clover discoverer, had made this suggestion and time had proven its worth. I still believe in this "second-story pasture," especially when the leguminous trees can be the means of providing additional feed. (Trees such as honey locust, etc.)

Yesterday we roamed about over our farm for the first time this Winter. Down under the serecea straw piles, we found the volunteer grass and the manganese clover was three inches high and without this protection, there was none. We found that in the standing serecea straw, the growth of Winter volunteer grass and clovers was an inch in height and in the places where there was no protection from the weather, the growth was nil. These findings are significant.

Some years back, a Texas farmer told me a story of wintering cattle on Johnson grass and I did not believe him, but I now notice that where Johnson grass has been left undisturbed, the growth of Winter grasses and clovers comes on through. This farmer said that he grew Johnson grass in Summer and fertilized it well in the Fall with nitrogen and let it go till Winter and turned his cattle in on it when the frosts came on. Maybe he had something down under there, in addition.

A friend from Decatur recommends that we follow this practice with Bermuda grass; fertilize it well with nitrogen in the late Summer and keep the cattle off of it until frost and then turn them in. He says that the upper part of the Bermuda plant will protect the lower part and this lower part will remain green.

These examples furnish enough food for speculation on what might happen if we had all of the facts available. Meanwhile, I'd like to hear from a good soil temperature man, if it isn't too much trouble.

If you would like to become a member of the Friends of the Land, drop us a line and we'll ask Membership Chairman Lee Trimble to contact you. We have a chapter of about 130 friendly people and would like to add more Friends to our group. The Land magazine goes to each member. It's worth the cost, of itself.

And the folks are friendly who listen in on our programs at 12:45 p. m. and 6 a. m. Will you join us? We'd like it.

Until then,

Channing Cope

All Grains Wipe Out Portion of Recent Losses

CHICAGO, Feb. 9—(AP)—All grains made a strong recovery on the Board of Trade today, cancelling a small part of the heavy losses of last week. The market opened higher and for the most part held above the previous close throughout the session, ending not far below the day's top.

The recovery was not unexpected in view of the recent sharp break. Dealers said the market's technical position had been improved and prices were entitled to at least a temporary rally. A major factor in the advance was simply a letup in the excessive liquidation of last week.

Wheat closed 3 1-2 to 8 cents higher, May $2.57 1-4-$2.56 3-4; corn was 5 3-8 to 8 cents higher, May $2.21 1-2-$2.21; oats were 2 1-4-4 1-2 higher, May $1.08 1-2-$1.08 3-4, and soybeans were 3 to 4 1-4 higher, March $3.57.

Mills gave the wheat market strong support, reflecting an expansion in flour business. Large chain bakers reportedly were buying for February and March shipment in contrast to their recent hand-to-mouth policy. For some time the bakers have been holding away from the market, believing prices were too high.

Weather in the Southwest was favorable for the new wheat crop. Temperatures were above zero and snow fell over the weekend in parts of Texas and Oklahoma. Grain analysts cautioned that the 1948 wheat crop is far from made and pointed out that a crop failure undoubtedly would cause a sharp price rise. Visible supply of wheat totaled 92,659,000 bushels against 37,971,000 a year ago.

All corn contracts except May jumped the eight-cent daily limit. Some selling developed in corn following news that a Senate-House subcommittee had voted approval of imposing restrictions on the use of grain in distilling. May and July dipped below the previous close, but prices quickly rallied.

Offerings of cash corn by the country were somewhat less than in the latter days of last week, amounting to 215,000 bushels. Dealers reported shipping sales of 50,000 bushels from here in contrast with none late last week. The visible supply of corn increased 1,052,000 bushels to 16,287,000 bushels this week.

Oats attracted new buying in view of the fact that deferred contracts were selling below the Jan. 15 farm parity of $1. Soybeans dropped the eight-cent limit early, but rallied with other grains toward the close. Lard rallied to end five to 25 cents a hundred pounds higher, March, $22.30.

Despite today's rally, prices are still sharply under seasonal peaks, made in most cases on Jan. 16. Wheat is off 32 to 49¼ cents; corn 37¾ to 49½ cents; oats 8⅞ to 21⅛ cents, and soybeans 84 to 85 cents.

COFFEE MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—Santos coffee futures were irregular today. There was some hedging which met only scale down dealer support. Spot coffee was quiet but firm. Roasters bought only as they needed green coffee to maintain inventory positions. Coffee Spot Santos No. 4 closed at 26¾-27n. Cost and freight offerings included Santos Bourbon 3s at 26.30-80n and 5s 25.00-25.20n. Santos No. 4 "A" futures closed quiet, no sales. Santos No. 4 "D" futures closed 42 to 52 lower; sales 162 contracts.

Selected Stocks Edge Forward To Minor Gains

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—(AP)—Stocks edged forward on a selective basis today, apparently aided by rallying grains, although the session was the second slowest in five months and many market leaders stumbled.

The ticker tape dozed from the start. Rising trends in the forenoon faltered after midday. While advances of fractions to a point or more held a majority at the close, numerous pivotals showed losses of as much. Transfers of 650,000 shares compared with 920,000 Friday. They equaled the low of Jan. 26 which was a 5-hour bottom since Sept. 26.

Professional short covering and other bidding again was based on hopes that Saturday's technical comeback could be extended if staples prices stiffened. Brokerage clients either did nothing or trimmed accounts because of persistent skepticism regarding the economic picture, taxes, unsettled foreign currencies and the possibility of growing labor disputes.

The Associated Press 60-day composite was unchanged at 62 where it was only ¼ of a point above the low since last June. It was the narrowest full market since Jan. 26. Of 921 issues appearing, 386 rose and 310 fell.

Advances for some favored railroad obligations imparted a steady tone to today's bond market. Dealings were quiet, however, and occasional soft spots developed into the corporate list. Ahead near the start of the final hour were Chicago Great Western Income 4½s, International Great Northern First 6s, Pennsylvania Central Airline 3½s and Shell Union 2½s. Backward were Lehigh Valley, Hudson Terminal 5s, Monon Income 4s and American & Foreign Power 5s.

Ahead in the curb were Standard Oil of Kentucky, American Gas, N. J. Zinc and Pantepec. Minor declines were posted for Kaiser-Frazer, Brown-Forman Distillers and Cities Service.

SUGAR FUTURES

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—Domestic sugar futures were steady today, with considerable trade buying in the near-by May position. This was attributed possibly to covering against raw sugar sales. World sugar futures were quiet, as traders awaited developments from Cuba on the possible segregation of part of the sugar crop to support prices. Raw sugar market was quiet. A leading New York refiner reduced the price of bulk refined sugar 25 points to 7.75 cents a pound. Other refiners were expected to follow. Domestic sugar futures No. 5 closed one lower. Sales 285 contracts.

Possible Big Cotton Crop In 1948 Holds Prices

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—(AP)—Cotton futures closed 65 cents a bale higher to $1.20 lower today. Trading was moderately active and prices charted an irregular pattern throughout the session. Near-by months were supported by short-covering and mill buying, influenced by hopes that export cotton business with China and Japan will be speeded up.

Larger acreage ideas on the next cotton crop discouraged buying in the deferred deliveries which sagged on liquidation. Surveys by leading spot firms placed the probable increase in cotton planting at five to six percent over last season. Some traders looked for at least a 10 percent increase. The Department of Agriculture has recommened that farmers plant only three percent more acreage than a year ago.

N. O. Cotton Market Closes for Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 9—(AP)—Cotton futures declined in the early trading here today but shortly afterwards near months rallied on mill buying and short covering while the distant positions lagged. Closing prices were steady, 65 cents a bale higher to 55 cents lower.

Much of the demand resulted from wide gains in the grain market, Washington reports claiming the Marshall Plan may get congressional approval by April, and somewhat better textile reports.

The local market will be closed tomorrow in observance of Mardi Gras.

Spot cotton advanced 50 cents a bale. Local sales amounted to 477 bales.

BALLOON BUSTERS — Something new in the way of model aeroplane contests has come to Atlanta with a loud pop. Sunday members of the Atlanta Aero-Engineers sponsored a "balloon busting" contest in the City Auditorium annex. About 50 balloons were hung across the annex and model planes equipped with pins were released on signal. The winner, Chuck Milam, knocked off nine balloons during the afternoon.

CIVIL RIGHTS—Former Marine Chaplain Roland B. Gittelsohn, a member of President Truman's Committee on Civil Rights, will lecture here at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Progressive Club. His talk is part of the Atlanta Jewish Culture Series. He presently is Rabbi of Central Synagogue of Nassau County in New York and National Chaplain of the Jewish War Veterans.

WOMEN VETS — The Lawson Veterans' Administration Hospital Monday opened a 20-bed ward for women veterans. Women will be treated by specialists. No provisions are made for maternity cases, according to Dr. John G. Hood, Hospital Manager.

ANNIVERSARY—Dr. Hugh S. Bradley has celebrated the fifth anniversary of his service as Minister of the Decatur Presbyterian Church. Figures show gifts by the Church in 1943 were $10,727 as compared with $30,774 last year. Membership also increased from 1,281 to 1,725. Gifts received went from $29,710 to $78,301 annually over the period.

LAW FIRM—A new law firm, Parker and Parker, opened Monday on the twelfth floor of the First National Bank Building.

YOUR EYES

By DR. L. N. HUFF

A protrusion of cornea without affectation of the iris following inflammation but without perforations is known as keratectasia. The bulging portion is opaque, and it may follow thinning from an ulcer which has not perforated or it may be due to softening of the cornea after an abnormal membrane-like vascularization of the cornea and inflammation of the inner portions of the cornea.

DR. L. N. HUFF

There is always a marked reduction of vision and when fully developed through too long neglect, treatment cannot prevail.

Conical Cornea or keratoconus is a non-inflammatory conical protrusion of the center of the cornea due to gradual atrophic thinning, in consequence of which the cornea is unable to resist normal intraocular pressure. The condition occurs infrequently, usually bilateral, and begins to develop in young adults. It causes myopia and astigmatism and interferes seriously with sight.

Take care of the only pair of eyes you will ever have and remember, "It's All in the Examination."

Arkansas Court Holds to Ruling Voiding Divorces

LITTLE ROCK, Feb. 9—(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court Monday refused to reconsider its decision invalidating the Pulaski County Domestic Relations Court and the 1,750 divorces granted by Chancellor Ruth Hale.

In a 5-2 ruling on Jan. 12, the high tribunal held a 1947 act creating the Second Division of Pulaski County (Little Rock) Chancery Court and naming Mrs. Ruth Hale Chancellor to be unconstitutional.

The opinion, declaring no court had ever existed under the faulty act, nullified all divorce decrees granted by Mrs. Hale.

EQUIPMENT BOUGHT—Atlanta's Fire and Police Departments Monday were given new equipment valued at approximately $35,000, and bids were opened for other divisions on supplies and equipment estimated at $100,000. Meeting at the City Hall, the Purchasing Committee authorized purchase of approximately 13,000 feet of new fire hose at $20,000 and 10 new police cars and seven three-wheel motorcycles for another $15,000. Included among the bids received were millwork and steel for the Construction Department, adding machines and copper water pipes and fittings for the Water Department, 16 new trucks for the Construction, Health, Police and Motor Transport divisions.

BOARD MEETING — Committees of the Atlanta Board of Education will meet at 2 p. m. today, just an hour before the regular Board February session is slated. Adoption of the 1948 budget calling for an outlay of more than $7,000,000 is the major problem scheduled for consideration.

STORK BUSY—Dr. Stork, who made a record of 14,459 visits to Atlanta in 1947, is favoring Atlantans again this year, according to figures released by L. Thornton, Director of the Health Department's Vital Statistics Bureau. The old bird settled in Atlanta 1,025 times in January, 1948, compared to the 885 he delivered for the same month last year.

VACATIONIST—Mrs. Alice Cook, billing clerk in the Waterworks Department and veteran employee of the City, is on vacation.

SCHOOL SITES INFLATED—Miss Ira Jarrell, City School Superintendent, has threatened to use air rights on existing school grounds rather than pay what she considers "too high prices" for new schools. After she was quoted a figure on a tract on which the School Department plans to erect a new Negro school, she said the price "is too high and we will just build another story on what we have before we will squander bond funds." If they force us to do it, we will just use our air rights and build higher buildings rather than waste money on existing inflated real estate values," she said.

MAYOR'S DAY—Mayor Hartsfield Monday was considerably relieved that the crick in his neck is improved. He answered mail, attended a meeting of Council's Purchasing Committee, and held several conferences.

VICTORY DINNER—Miss Ira Jarrell, City School Superintendent and Woman of the Year, was honored at a victory dinner staged at Samuel Inman School. Members of the Parent-Teacher Association descended on the school and took over classes for an hour so that all members of the faculty could join in the celebration.

WOMEN'S CELL BLOCK

Warden, Two Aides Fired After Charges of Assault

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 9—(UP)—The Warden and two assistants at Jefferson County Jail were fired Monday in connection with irregularities in the women's cell block where prisoners charged that male employees petted them and one reported she had become pregnant.

The dismissal of Chief Warden Thomas C. Sims and Assistants Robert F. McDonald and O. E. Kinney climaxed a Grand Jury investigation undertaken after the pregnancy charges were filed and women civic leaders inspected the jail.

An attractive 21-year-old former WAC who was doing 60 days for passing bad checks, charged that the jail dietician, Thomas E. Johnson, assaulted her in the cell-block and made her pregnant.

Johnson, whose resignation was accepted Jan. 9 by Sheriff Holt McDowell, already is under indictment for rape and the Grand Jury is considering a bastardy charge against him. He is being held without bond.

Warden Sims' dismissal was recommended by the Grand Jury because he allegedly made improper advances to the women prisoners.

The Jury charged the assistant wardens also made improper advances to the prisoners and told them dirty jokes.

Matrons have now replaced the male attendants at the jail, and Sheriff McDowell said, "We have the finest jail in the country."

It is situated on the seventh and eighth floors of the Courthouse. The women are permitted to decorate their eighth floor cells to their own tastes, and they "look very feminine," the Sheriff reported.

KAYE SURRENDERS — Arthur Kaye, of Fort Worth, Texas, formerly Southeastern Regional Director of the American Guild of Variety Artists, indicted for larceny after trust, surrendered to Sheriff "Bud" Foster Monday. He was later released under bond of $5,000. Matt Shelvey, former head of the same union, indicted with Kaye, telephoned the Sheriff several days ago he would surrender, but has not been heard from further.

BAILEYS ARRESTED — Sol. Gen. Paul Webb Monday applied for extradition papers for Col. Frank Bailey, former Atlanta insurance executive accused of larceny after trust, who is under arrest at Ocala, Fla. Meanwhile, Chief Deputy Ralph Grimes received word that Bailey's son, Frank Watson Bailey, had been arrested in Westport, Conn., but had made bond of $10,000 and was flying to Atlanta to face a charge similar to that placed against his father. The Baileys, who formerly lived in Atlanta, where they were officials of the insolvent Southern States Insurance Corporation, were accused of larceny after trust of $46,000 from the Keystone Mutual Casualty Company, of Pennsylvania.

FRANK FLING ILL — Clerk Frank Fling, of the County Commission, is in the Ponce de Leon Infirmary suffering from a virus infection of his throat.

America toasted the birdmen with mellow C&G

When the big air meet was staged on the Lake Michigan water front in 1911, "every spectator had a stiff neck." Tom Sopwith set a thrilling new speed record of nearly 58 miles an hour!

CHAPIN & GORE Kentucky distilled Bourbon was the choice of gracious hosts when the airplane existed only in man's imagination. It is the same today—C&G's mellow goodness and distinctive flavor make it the preferred whiskey of those who know good bourbon.

Try C&G yourself, the next time. Reasonable in price, C&G is truly a finer whiskey.

TWO NEW PARKS—Plans for opening two new State parks this Spring were announced Monday by Parks Director Charlie Morgan. Heretofore merely recreational areas, the parks, in Dade County in Northwest Georgia and Early County in Southwest Georgia, will be developed and superintendents appointed. W. T. McCauley, of Rising Fawn, was named superintendent of Cloudland Canyon State Park in Dade County. A superintendent for Kolomoki State Park in Early County will be announced later. This will give the State superintendents at 20 of its parks.

TO BUILD DAM—Contract for construction of an earth and concrete dam at Kolomoki State Park at an estimated cost of $50,000 will be let this month, Morgan said. The dam will create a large lake for fishing, swimming, and boating. The site recently was cleared, roads constructed, and signs put up. This is the site of the Kolomoki Temple Mounds, which archeologists say represents the oldest Indian civilization east of the Mississippi.

IMPROVE WALKER PARK—Down near Waycross, the State is spending $22,000 in improving the cabins at the Laura Walker State Park. A new diving tower and additional diving board will be installed at Vogel State Park, near Blairsville. All in all, the Parks Department is spending $122,000 in improving its parks.

GOVERNOR ON BOARD—For the first time since the Governor's office surrendered the right to pardon in 1943, Acting Gov. Thompson sat with the Parole Board to hear an appeal from James Mangum, 18-year-old Atlanta Negro, that his death sentence be commuted to life imprisonment. Thompson substituted for Mrs. Helen Coxon, Board member who is ill, under the law which requires all death hearings to be heard by either three members of the Board or two members and the Governor. Mangum claimed police forced him to confess that he criminally assaulted 13 white women. The State Supreme Court has twice denied his appeals, the South Georgia District Federal Court has turned down his appeal, and the Parole Board has turned down a previous appeal. The Board took the new request under advisement.

HEARING DELAYED — Chairman Walter McDonald said the Georgia Public Service Commission has postponed until March 25 the application of the Georgia Power and Light Company for rate increases.

TROLLEY APPEAL—The Georgia Public Service Commission took under advisement a petition by Peachtree patrons to force the Georgia Power Company to resume trolley service to Nineteenth Street.

Slow-Pay Boys Send Victims Into Huddle

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—(AP)—The collection boys are meeting to see if they can stem the rising tide of bad debts.

Charges to bad debts are running 33 to 66 percent ahead of last year. Collections are steadily getting slower. They are almost as bad as in the poor prewar days.

At the fifth annual Credit and Collection Conference here Monday they discussed how they can lower the percentage, get a closer check on applicants seeking store credit and work out better collection supervision.

A further tightening of the credit situation is foreseen by the Bankers Trust Company of New York.

"It is evident that bank credit will be more difficult to obtain this year than in recent periods," is the chilling way the bank puts it.

The bank believes business will seek more funds for expansion this year, that residential construction, State and local government financing will also expand. Business will lean heavily on borrowed money, the bank predicts, because flow of capital into equity securities will be "less than desirable."

Pastor Testifies In FTC Hearing On 'Degrees Mill'

A Baptist Minister of College Park Monday was named a respondent with other officials of Washington's Mount Vernon University at a Federal Trade Commission hearing in Atlanta into a complaint that the institution "sold its degrees."

The Rev. W. Fred Hinesley, Pastor of the Mercer Avenue Baptist Church, testified at the hearing that he held various high offices with the University, although he never taught any classes, graded any papers or attended any meetings. He said his only duty was signing "degrees."

The Minister said the "degrees" were conferred upon various Southerners after he had recommended them as "outstanding citizens," "fine humanitarians" and "very prominent residents"—and upon payment of a $50 "donation" or "contribution."

The Rev. Mr. Hinesley was called to testify as the result of a complaint of the Federal Trade Commission that officials of Mount Vernon University had misrepresented their purposes, and the institution had improperly and unlawfully awarded its degrees.

Trial examiners of the FTC also heard testimony of four prominent Georgia professional men.

They are: Dr. O. R. Styles, Cedartown physician; Homer C. Denton, Atlanta attorney; E. C. Brannon, Gainesville attorney, and J. B. G. Banks, Douglasville merchant. Under questioning by the examiners, the Georgians said they had "donated" $50 and "sometimes more" to "enable some poor boy or girl to get a religious education." In return, they were awarded "degrees" ranging from "Doctor of Law," "Bachelor of Arts" and "Master of Arts."

Three more Georgians, Thomas W. Kenemer and Henry C. Kenemer, of Dalton, and William S. O'Neal, of Douglasville, will testify today after which the examiners will go to Tampa where another hearing is scheduled Feb. 16.

Johns-Manville Reports Increased Production

Expansion Program Brings Results In Helping Meet Nation's Needs

GREATER production of building and industrial materials was the big accomplishment of Johns-Manville in the record year 1947.

Production of badly needed items was 1½ to 5 times that of pre-war 1940.

Two new plants were completed and put into operation.

Two other plants were started and will be producing in 1948.

More than a thousand separate improvement and expansion projects were completed in 16 plants across the country.

These were some of J-M's efforts to increase the supply of goods needed to help offset shortages.

Record Sales

Sales were $134 million compared with $92 million in 1946.

Profits were 7 1/10 cents per dollar of total sales.

More Employes

Employes numbered 18,500 compared with 15,800 in 1946.

Higher Payrolls

Payrolls amounted to $53¼ million compared with $39½ million in 1946.

Expanded Research

Additional buildings were rising at the new J-M Research Center, biggest of its kind in the world.

Moderate Price Increases

Moderate price increases were required to help offset skyrocketing costs of production.

But average prices of J-M building materials since 1941 have increased less than half as much as has the average for building materials in general.

J-M's Annual Statement

Here are the highlights of Johns-Manville's annual statement for the year 1947:*

TOTAL INCOME	$134	million
For all costs (except as shown below)	$ 63	million
To employes for salaries & wages	$ 53¼	million
To government for taxes	$ 8¼	million
To stockholders in dividends	$ 4¼	million
Reinvested in the business	$ 5¼	million

EARNINGS AFTER TAXES were $3.23 per share of common stock after adjustment for a three-for-one split of the common stock in May, 1947.

TAXES were equivalent to $2.87 per share of common stock.

• • •

Johns-Manville will continue to do everything possible to meet the demands for building and industrial products and to provide greater value for the consumer dollar.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Mr., Mrs. Adamson Hosts At New Golf Club's 1st Party

The first party to be given at the new Peachtree Golf Club will be the dinner at which Elma and Bob Adamson will entertain on Sunday, Feb. 22, in compliment to Louise and Donald Hastings, whose first literary effort, "The Southern Garden Book," is just off the press. Not only will the affair be held in a brand new locale, but it will feature gay decorations significant of the date, Washington's birthday, such as flags, cherry trees, hatchets, etc. Covers will be placed for a group of the honor guests' close friends.

Incidentally, the new club, located at 7500 Peachtree Rd. in the reconditioned old Ashford home, will open its doors for the first time today by serving luncheon to its exclusive membership, which numbers only 150, and their friends. Next week the club management has planned to begin serving dinner. The officers of this latest addition to Atlanta's social clubs are Bobby Jones, President; Dick Garlington, Vice President, and Baxter Maddox, Secretary-Treasurer.

But to get back to Louise and Donald and the numerous other parties being given in their honor, the Habersham Garden Club will entertain at tea on Saturday at the home of Mrs. Marcus Emmert, on Pace's Ferry Road, with Louise as central figure. Next Tuesday she and Donald will share honors at an autographing tea to be given in Rich's Magnolia Room, and on Wednesday, Louise will leave for Cincinnati where she will be extensively entertained.

On Feb. 21, the popular pair will go to Macon, where they will be guests at the Camellia show. While they are there, Mrs. R. J. Carmichael will entertain at luncheon at her handsome College Street residence, which is one of the show places of Macon, having been converted from the old Shinholser home.

On Feb. 28, Louise and Donald and Rebecca and Fred Cooledge will go to Columbus, where they will be guests for the weekend of Dr. and Mrs. A. N. Dykes. Louise will be one of the judges of the Columbus Camellia Show on that date, and afterward Dr. and Mrs. Dykes will be hosts at an elaborate dinner for their guests at their home.

March 3 will find Donald and Louise in Chattanooga for an autographing party, and on March 5 they will go to Thomasville. Louise will spend the week of March 8 in New York, where she will attend the annual New York flower show. She is scheduled to speak in Harrisburg, Pa., on March 16, and she is slated to appear in Wichita Falls, Texas, three days later—on March 19. She will doubtless have to resort to air travel to make connections for all of her engagements!

Fans To Feature Camellia Show Today

When you visit the Camellia Show today be sure not to miss the fan exhibit which you will find at the far end of the Biltmore ballroom, for it is not only clever and original—it is artistic to the nth degree.

That this is not an overstatement you would surely agree if you could see the sample sketches which Philip Shutze made as guides for this most interesting phase of the show. In fact, it was Mr. Shutze who drew up plans and laid out the entire show, so you may depend upon it to be the last word in artistry.

The fans will be displayed in three recesses built into a dark red frame stretching across the end of the ballroom. The recesses will be lined in tufted satin, with the central one in chartreuse green and the other two in pale pink. The fans will be pinned to the satin.

One of the drawings Mr. Shutze made features a dainty feminine face, complete with long dark eyelashes, which will be complemented by apricot-colored camellias. Another will feature medallions centered with fresh white camellias on a pink fan trimmed with pale blue ribbons.

The Chinese influence prevails in a bright green fan on which will be posed pink camellias in combination with colorful Chinese figures. A pastoral scene centering a moss-green fan will be flanked by white camellias striped in red.

The prize to be awarded for the most artistic fan will be a beautiful framed fan donated by Allie (Mrs. Samuel C.) Porter.

Peter Candler's Birthday Party

One of the loveliest children's parties of the season was that at which Sarah (Mrs. Robert W.) Candler entertained Saturday in honor of her young son, Peter, who celebrated his sixth birthday. The affair was held in the ballroom at the Driving Club, and assembled 100 young guests.

Peter's maternal grandmother, Mrs. E. E. McGray, braved the elements (which were something terrific, if you remember) to motor from her home in Kendallville, Ind., to get here in time for the party. And, if you are familiar with the artistic talents that both she and Sarah possess, you have already guessed that the decorations were wonderful to behold. They chose a gay red and white color motif, which was expressed in myriads of balloons, candies, and novel favors which delighted youthful hearts.

A sleight-of-hand artist entertained the children for a spell, after which Graham Jackson appeared on the scene to provide music for their games and for the singing of the birthday song.

Mrs. E. A. Courtney and Mrs. R. H. Reeves have returned to their homes in Houma, La.

LET'S SEE NOW . . .

She Only Wants A Chance To Help

By DORIS LOCKERMAN,
Woman's News Editor

What a shock it must be to have spent a lifetime in what you believed was an honorable, worth-while profession, only to be faced with the fact that your work is not respected in your newly adopted city.

Such is the reception which Atlanta, if unwittingly, has given to Mrs. Anna Kolachny, of Washington, D. C., a kind-faced woman of quiet dignity who recently came here to live with her daughter, her three grandbabies and her son-in-law, Joe Dwyer, a professor at Georgia Tech.

A native of Czechoslovakia, Mrs. Kolachny received her degree from the National College of Physiotherapy in Chicago, where she became an accredited masseuse. Following her course of study, she spent 35 years as an assistant to her doctor husband in Ponca City, Okla., lending her own skill to hasten the recovery of many of his patients.

Upon the death of her husband, Mrs. Kolachny went to Washington, where for several years she was associated with the Health Education Department of the YWCA. There she applied the magic of her strong, skilled hands to soothe the nerves of many overworked women in wartime Washington.

Gradually her fame spread and she eventually found herself working under the direction of prominent doctors there. Stepping in where medical science could do no more, she practically willed patients back to health with her wholesome therapeutic aid and her persistently encouraging manner.

Then, because her daughter needed her, Mrs. Kolachny came to Atlanta—hoping that, in addition to helping with the babies, she could continue with her profession—and remain independent financially.

"But, in Atlanta, I find that the work of a masseuse is not generally looked upon with respect," said Mrs. Kolachny, bewilderedly. "I opened an establishment here, well equipped for scientific Swedish massages and baths, thinking that my clientele would be the same type of people I had served elsewhere.

"To my surprise" she admitted, "some of the people who came to me thought the sign on the office was just a front. I could not bring myself to serve most of the patrons who applied for treatment. I'm sure now that a great mistake was made when the sign painter I employed failed to include 'For Women Only' on my office door.

"My friends suggested that I would do better to select another location," she went on. "I followed their advice and then tried to place advertisements with your newspapers here but was turned down. That was really a shock. Surely the charlatans must have given this town a drubbing, I thought.

"Then I decided to go to your Better Business Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce for help. I begged them to make a complete investigation of my life and my work as a masseuse. They promised to leave no ground uncovered and to do what they could to help me.

"I am waiting," she said, smiling, as if to reassure herself. "A good purpose cannot fail. I want only to help sick and nervous people in a legal, honest way. And I know that the path will be made clear for me. You will see."

Why Don't You?

Wear a camellia in your belt today instead of pinned conventionally on your shoulder? It's a new (and old) way of wearing flowers. Another good idea: tuck a pink camellia in the knot of your rope of pearls. It gives the whole thing a double entendre.

The Best of These

Every now and then you see a human being who is grateful and proves it. A tall young executive at a local department store fell behind his crowd of lunchers, and a glance back caught him pushing a dollar bill into a collection box for a charity.

"Free lunch," he grinned, in explanation, and came on.

I wondered how many people figure it that way.

Excess Weight Puts Load On Heart, Says Expert

By IDA JEAN KAIN

So you never felt better in your life? Admittedly you're overweight—yes, quite a bit above normal—but it's good healthy fat . . . And that's the way many fat people lightly dismiss their avoirdupois.

But excess fat isn't healthy, nor can it be dismissed lightly. It's a grim fact—excess pounds can make you more susceptible to the nation's No. 1 killer.

Doctor's orders.. REDUCE!

Every year in this country more than 400,000 persons die from some form of heart disease. Dr. James M. Hundley, U. S. Health Service, says that excessive overweight is certainly a contributing factor to death from diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

"Extra pounds put a strain on the heart," declares Dr. Hundley. "They have to be supplied with blood—and there are a great number of blood vessels in fat." It seems quite likely, he goes on to say, that overweight is a factor in the development of hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure.

Dr. Hundley points out that overweights are short of breath because they are carrying more weight than the system is built for. Also, since weight tends to accumulate in the abdomen—and part of the breathing process is abdominal—overweight interferes with respiration.

What symptoms of heart trouble should we be on the lookout for? The most common, according to our authority, include:

Shortness of breath when climbing stairs—or doing anything that could formerly be done with little effort.

Frequent pain beneath breastbone as a result of some exertion.

Swelling of feet and ankles.

Habitually having to get up at night to urinate.

Unexplained headaches.

Sudden change in vision in people below 40.

Pain in chest, particularly one that tends to radiate down left arm.

Palpitations.

Difficulty in breathing when lying down.

These symptoms do not always mean something is wrong with the heart, Dr. Hundley emphasizes. They may be due to many other things, and some of them may not be abnormal at all. Nevertheless they are potential danger signals and should be checked by a physician. He stresses the fact that early diagnosis and treatment can often prevent more serious developments, and greatly prolong life.

It's difficult to say what environmental conditions contribute to heart disease. "It's not so much the conditions under which people live and work," explains Dr. Hundley. "It's how the people react to them." As for the comparative susceptibility of individuals the doctors says that high-strung people, over 50, women in change of life, pregnant women, victims of kidney disease . . . and people who weigh too much . . . all may be more susceptible to heart trouble.

But a warning—if overweight has harmed your heart, reducing must be done with great precaution, and under the constant supervision of your doctor.

Sandwiches

Nutritious sandwiches to put into a lunch box may be made from peanut butter, cheese, egg, baked beans, fish or meat. Adding a layer of chopped cabbage, shredded carrot or diced green pepper plus mayonnaise or salad dressing will make the sandwiches taste better.

ELLEN LOUISE RYAN
In Her Sweet Little Alice Blue Gown

DESIGNED DRESS SHE'S WEARING

Young Designer Began Career With Doll Clothes

By MAYNITA GERRY

Somewhere between the life span of six and ten years, Ellen Louise Ryan started designing.

"My dolls never seemed to have enough clothes to suit me," she says now, "so I always supplied them with additional ones."

As she outgrew the paper doll stage, her penchant for designing languished. Even during high school at Sacred Heart, sewing wasn't exactly a joy. She recalls sheepishly that her mother had to finish the dress that was to complete her sewing assignments.

But all that has been changed within the last year. Now she's a big girl, struggling under the burden of 18 Summers, and has just completed a sewing assignment that would warrant a big A-plus from the most pedantic instructor.

She designed and made the dress she's wearing in the picture above. It's of Alice Blue taffeta and white lace, cut partly from a pattern and partly from fancy, but mostly from a batch of unfinished sketches, doodled in the spare moments between her job, her voice lessons, and various and sundry other things that clutter the time of a very pretty miss.

Starting with the bodice, with it's darted waistline, the skirt grew, by trial and error, into a petticoated affair, caught up, out of sheer ecstasy, perhaps, to reveal even more lace. A wide band encircles the shoulders, harnessed into place with a narrow band over each shoulder blade, and comes to rest in front with an elongated rosette of lace.

Designing Miss Ryan has a handful of sketches, plus a brainful of ideas, just waiting for time and material to try her hand further at what has turned out to be a fascinating avocation.

Camellia Show at Biltmore

By LENNA McKINLEY

Don't blame the weatherman. He didn't order this sleet and sub-freezing temperature. It's all the fault of Old Mother Nature. She has been ornery all Winter, you will remember.

But, wintry blasts notwithstanding, the Camellia Show Association will stage its third annual Camellia Show today at the Biltmore Hotel, from 1 p. m. until 10 p. m.

Both amateur and professional growers from all over the South have culled their finest blossoms to help make this the best collection of camellia blooms ever to be assembled in Atlanta.

The women of the Camellia Show Association have been working for weeks to provide a fitting background for their displays of this exotic flower. Aside from the hundreds of specimen blossoms which may be seen, there will be artistic arrangements for every conceivable use. There will be a huge frame displaying old-fashioned fans done in various shades of camellias. And decorating the walls of the ballroom will be several flower prints set in frames, with outstanding Atlanta artists using real flowers instead of oils.

A special feature will be hats—1948 New Look hats—created entirely of camellias by talented members of the organization. Prize winner in this classification will be awarded a Lilly Dache hat, created by this famed designer especially for the show.

Purpose of the show is to create an endowment fund for Egleston Demonstration Garden, a plot of ground alongside Egleston Hospital for Children, which is utilized by Atlanta garden club women to grow fresh vegetables and fruits for little patients at the institution.

The women of the Camellia Show Association are not worried about the weather. Their show will go on. It takes more than a little cold weather to keep Atlanta people from supporting a good cause. There are plenty of tickets at the door, just in case you have not already purchased yours.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

DEGENERATION

You said lack of one or more wisdom teeth is a sign of degeneration, involution, slow death that threatens our existence. How do you reconcile this statement with the facts of evolution? Couldn't the failure of so many persons to cut wisdom teeth be a kind of vestigial?

(G. P.)

Answer—Facts? The whole thing is theory, of course. That from one to all four "wisdom teeth" (third molars) are missing from the mouths of 50 percent of Americans over 25 years of age is a fact which, to my mind, suggests that we Americans are on the tobaggan as a race, and we are being shoved along on the decline by (a) the namby-pamby refined diet most of us follow and (b) the wishy-washy attitude of physicians and dentists and health authorities generally in regard to conservation of the teeth.

EGG WHITE

Is is true that egg white is indigestible?

Answer—No, but raw egg white is less complete and less quickly digested than cooked egg white.

WHITE COLLAR GIRL

Live With Cats And Love Them

By TRILLE GERMON

"Learn something new every day" is old advice and good advice. We generally do learn something new daily, either consciously or subconsciously. If it is specialized information, which applies to your job, you make yourself more valuable as an employee, and if the boss doesn't notice you, you are woman enough to bring it adroitly to his attention,, albeit modestly! Of course it will show up in your work and may lead to that-raise-you-want-and-need. My personal experience is, the more you learn, the more you realize you need to know.

I am presently engaged in learning something new about cats—for CATS sake, and my sake, too! I hasten to say, not the average run-of-the-office variety you hear meowing politely over 10 o'clock cokes, or hanging on to the 5 o'clock trolley, but the domesticated animal defined by Webster as "a carnivorous mammal."

My family likes cats. They like white cats. They like yellow cats. They like black cats. They like cats PLURAL! At this writing, they have only three. Especially do they like a whole mess of kittens—"Come QUICK and see how cute the little kittens look swinging from the four corners of the tablecloth," nor does it matter that the tablecloth is my best lace cloth. Neither does it matter that they shinny up the drapes "like little monkeys" and sharpen claws on the Empire sofa. They still look cute!

I have moved all the breakable and spillable doo-dads from the coffee table and end tables to give them unhibited freedom to skid across in a game of "You can't ketch ME, I betcha." I have learned too, that cats are smart as a whip sometimes. They learn to come running at the sound of the refrigerator door opening, but sometimes they "just don't know any better" and that is when I should know better than to scold them for curling up on chairs and sofas for a quiet snooze. Want a fur coat? Come into my parlor and wear your best woolen coat, and you're WELCOME. Thank YOU, and the fur is FUR free!

SUSCEPTIBLE TO ODORS

It seems that cats are susceptible to odors. They like good meat smells and they adore perfume—on you and on them. Harold Martin has cats that like sherry and eggnog—but back to this new product. Let me tell you all about it. It is a powder, and is sprinkled on furniture and rugs frequented by cats. Very little is needed and it is harmless, that is, harmless to textiles and skin but obnoxious to the olfactory sense of the cat. It works and will save your furniture, your clothes, your disposition and may even save friendships. I'm getting enthusiastic. You might discreetly sprinkle a little on your callers and insure unsnared hose. And oh yes, it comes in packages for dogs, and can be used outside to protect shrubbery.

If you are wondering what place all this to-do about cats has in the WCG spotlight, let me tell you there is a method in my madness. Remember how long it takes to brush off cat hairs in the morning before going to work. Remember how much time it takes to clean furniture and rugs covered in said cat hair, and as we said before, your disposition comes in for consideration, and starting the day off right for yourself may be instrumental in radiating good will and good humor to the entire office personnel.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of Clubs.

When there is no short suit in dummy, there would seem to be no good reason to postpone the drawing of trumps, unless dummy's trumps are required for purposes of entry. In today's hand we find a situation in which no entries are required to dummy, there is apparently no short suit and yet trumps should not be drawn because of the rare phenomenon of a three-card suit in dummy being converted into a ruffing value. The bidding was normal. After North's response of one no trump, South elected to make the strongly invitational jump rebid of three spades. He might have raised the no trump but the singleton heart and the completely defenseless club suit influenced in favor of spades. It is borderline for a jump but the hand does possess a probable playing trick strength of seven tricks which the jump rebid promises. North, having a sound no trump take-out, went on to four spades, though some players prefer with balanced distribution to go on in no trump, giving partner the opportunity to continue in spades if his hand is completely unbalanced. The king of clubs was opened. The defense took three tricks in that suit and shifted to a heart. Declarer immediately extracted trumps and trusted that the diamonds would break. When this failed to materialize, the contract was set a trick.

Declarer's technique was not faultless. There was no need for him to assume diamonds would break. He should have cashed only two trumps and then proceeded to play the ace, king and queen of diamonds. If everybody followed, so that the thirteenth diamond became good, the last trump would be extracted and the hand claimed. If the diamonds did not fall, there was the added chance that the player who was unable to follow to the diamond would not have the remaining trump.

If it is argued that the third diamond might be ruffed by the opposition, the answer is that in that case it would have done no good to draw trumps, because a diamond trick would have been lost in any event, so that there was no way to make the hand. The recommended play will succeed whenever diamonds break or whenever the hand with a doubleton diamond also has a doubleton trump.

Valentine Mousse Treat For the Whole Family

By SALLY SAVER

Valentine's Day, that day of hearts and flowers and sweet sentiment, is a day for a party. It need not be budget-wrecking, for the simplest meal is lifted out of the commonplace by a touch of decoration and a special dessert.

Choose roses for your table centerpiece. A few chramingly arranged so that the beauty of each rose stands out, will please the eye.

For dessert serve a Valentine mousse, moulded or cut in heart shape and accompanied by merinque cookies. Both are light, yet they're rich in sugar for body energy.

SWEETHEART MERINGUE COOKIES

2 egg whites
1 1-3 cups sugar
1-2 teaspoon salt
2-3 cup chopped peanuts
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat egg whites stiff; add sugar and salt while continuing to beat. Fold in peanuts and vanilla. Drop by teaspoons on greased baking sheets. Bake in moderate oven, 325 degrees F., 15 minutes or until golden brown. Yield: about three dozen.

VALENTINE MOUSSE

2 envelopes (2 tbsps.) unflavored gelatine
1-2 cup cold water
4 eggs, separated
2 cups milk
1 cup sugar
Few grains salt
Red food coloring
2 cups heavy cream, whipped
2 teaspoons vanilla

Sprinkle gelatine on cold water. Beat egg yolks; add milk, sugar and salt. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture coats spoon. Add gelatine and stir until dissolved. Remove from heat; tint deep pink with red food coloring. Chill until syrupy. Beat egg whites stiff; fold in. Fold in whipped cream and vanilla. Pour into freezing trays. Freeze until firm. Cut with small heart-shaped cookie cutter. Serve two hearts to each person. Yield: 12 servings.

ON THE LABOR FRONT

U. S. Won't Stand Strike, Coal Operators Warned

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP)—Cyrus S. Ching, head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, bluntly told the Southern Coal Operators Monday night that the American people "will not tolerate a coal stoppage."

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, has notified the operators that a dispute exists over his proposed pension plan for miners. This move is regarded as the first step in terminating the current UMW contract by April 1.

"The American people are bigger than you and bigger than the United Mineworkers," Ching told a dinner meeting of the Southern Coal Producers Association.

He advised the operators it was their responsibility to make a proper settlement with Lewis, but if they did not do so he warned that the Government would step in.

Ching's remarks stung several of the operators into sharp response. They suggested that Ching was threatening nationalization of the coal industry or other Government intervention.

FORCED TO SIGN

CORBIN, Ky., Feb. 9—(AP)—A superintendent of a strip mine at nearby Wilton, Ky., reported here Monday that 300 men came by cars and busses to his mine Monday and forced him at gunpoint to sign a union contract.

The superintendent, Angelo Iudicanni, 34, directing a strip mine for B. Perini and Sons, said he still did not know the name of the union with which he was told to sign a contract.

Iudicanni said the 300 men arrived at an entrance road leading to the strip mine just as he and the firm's employees were coming to work Monday morning. He said that in the conflict which followed four men were severely injured, including his brother-in-law, Arthur Rodine, who was taken to a Corbin hospital.

Iudicanni said: "They handed me papers, asking me if I wanted to sign. One member of the group pulled back his coat, revealing a pistol and several others carried guns. It was either sign or the .45; so I signed, but I don't know what the papers contained."

TO COMBAT 'QUICKIES'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Southern coal producers decided to haul John L. Lewis' miners before the National Labor Relations Board whenever they engage in "quickie" wildcat strikes. The operators said such stoppages were plaguing the industry.

The Southern group, after an all-day meeting, announced it had set up this procedure:

First an effort to settle differences through the grievance machinery in the contract.

Then, if that failed, an appeal to the NLRB for a "cease and desist" order—which includes the possibility of an injunction against the miners.

INDICTMENT SOUGHT

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Government sought an indictment against CIO officers for using Union funds in an election in defiance of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The CIO set out last July to test the constitutionality of the ban on political spending.

Pres. Philip Murray, in a signed editorial in the CIO News, urged Baltimore voters to support Representative Edward Garmatz, Democrat, in a special congressional election. The CIO News is financed from Union dues.

Hailed before a Federal Grand Jury were Editor Allan L. Swim, of the CIO News; Asst. Editor Henry Fleisher, and Business Mgr. Richard Bauer. Also heard was R. J. Thomas, former head of the United Auto Workers who now is an assistant to Organization Director Allan S. Haywood.

RULING DELAYED

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—A Federal Judge delayed until Tuesday a ruling on whether publishers and a union might join in the National Labor Relations Board suit for an injunction against the International Typographical Union.

Judge Luther M. Swygert said he needed more time to consider the question.

This delayed the arguments on other hot questions, for example, on the constitutionality of Section 10-J of the Taft-Hartley Act, under which the injunction is sought. Union lawyers say this Section violates the Constitution and should be wiped out by the court.

Juvenile Crime Is Decreasing, Woolfolk Says

By THOMAS M. ELLIOTT

Juvenile delinquency cases coming before the Fulton County Juvenile Court involving youth under 16 years of age show a decrease from 1,668 cases in 1943 to 1,117 in 1947, said Judge W. W. Woolfolk in an address Monday to the Atlanta Methodist Ministers Association.

Cases involving youth over 16 years of age have shown a proportionate increase during that time, said Judge Woolfolk.

Asserting that the juvenile court's weakness was found in its public relations, Judge Woolfolk told of the court's reorganization plan that calls for preventive work that employs investigation, probation and preventive officers, and appealed to the pastors for closer church and community co-operation in child guidance in development of character, using clubs, playground programs and the church as channels through which desired co-operation could be used.

In seeking to use preventive efforts, Judge Woolfolk stated that the juvenile court is now doing better work than ever before, citing the five-year record as evidence.

Quick Quips

By JOE LAURIE, JR.

Philip Murray, head man of the CIO, in his talks nearly always tells the following story: A farmer was driving along the road with his son and was showing the boy how expert he was with the whip. "Flick that apple off that tree with your whip, daddy." The farmer did so. "Flick that fly off the horse's head, daddy." The farmer did so. They came across a wasp's nest on the limb of a tree. "Let's see you take that nest off the tree with your whip, daddy." "Nothing doing, son, they're organized!"

I see where scientists say pig skin and human skin are exactly alike. I always wondered why the Bible says not to eat pigs. Maybe we're kinfolks.
